STATE EXAMINERS FORBID PAYMENT OF JUST BILLS

Hold Supply Committee to be Illegal, Although it Sues the Taxpayers' Money and Bills a Justly Due—Supervisors Agree to Penally Advance the Money to Pay These Bills.

Bills contracted in good faith upon a contract that they would be paid monthly must continue to be paid monthly, according to a decision of the supply committee of the county of Ulster, which held its regular monthly meeting at the courthouse Monday night.

Bills paid monthly are legal, according to the interpretation placed on the law by the bookkeepers employed by the state comptroller's office at Albany, and they have decided County Treasurer Snyder not pay bills so audited.

County Treasurer Snyder acted before the supply committee at its meeting Monday night and announced that the county treasurer's office had been told by the state comptroller's office that the bills were not to be paid, and after careful consideration the committee, view of the promises and contracts being for monthly payment, decided to advance the money personally for paying the bills, and later to submit a report of their action to the entire board of supervisors.

Bookkeepers Say All Bills are Legal.

A supply committee was authorized by the board of supervisors many years ago, and was appointed to meet a demand on the part of business men and the public generally that bills for ordinary supplies and repairs should not be held a year before being audited and paid. A supply committee has therefore been continued each succeeding year under each successive board, no matter what its political complexion.

At the time a supply committee was first authorized, the county had learned from experience that business men from whom supplies were purchased, or workmen who performed repair work, found they were unable to sell goods or perform work and then wait a year for their money unless they added the interest on their outlay for the year they were kept waiting, and the county therefore was paying higher prices than the private consumer who bought goods and either paid cash or paid his bills at the end of one or two months.

Comparison of prices paid by the county and the city of Kingston showed that the county was paying a higher price for this reason than the city of Kingston, which pays its bills twice a month. The county therefore directed its supply committee to meet monthly, to order supplies needed from month to month by the county officers, as regulations were made for such supplies; to order the ordinary repairs needed to the county buildings as emergencies arose, and to audit these bills at their monthly meetings. Upon such audit the county treasurer was directed to pay the bills. The committee made its report to the entire board at the annual session.

Although other counties, through their board of supervisors, maintain a supply committee similar to that of Ulster county, the bookkeepers employed in the state comptroller's office say that Ulster county's supply committee is illegal. They base this claim on a provision of law which authorizes a board of supervisors of any county to appoint "county auditors," who may act also as a purchasing committee, and since Ulster county has only a "supply committee" instead of "county auditors" who may also act as a "purchasing committee," the bookkeepers say that Ulster county has acted illegally, and that the bills audited by a "supply committee" are all illegal. They say, they do not use the word "supply committee" but "supply committee."

50% Discount for Monthly Payment.

Ulster county's contract with the Kingston Gas & Electric Company calls for a discount of 50 per cent on all electric light bills provided the bills are paid monthly. If the bills are not paid monthly the full rate is to be paid by the county. All other customers of the electric lighting company pay their bills monthly.

On account of a contract so favorable to the county, the supply committee has always audited the electric lighting company's bills monthly, and the discount has been received by the county.

Contracts for furnishing coal for the county buildings require that the coal bills shall be paid monthly, and in consideration of such prompt payment, the coal dealers furnish the county with gross tons instead of net tons. A net ton contains 2,000 pounds and a gross ton contains 2,240 pounds. Similar contracts, upon the condition of monthly payment, exist between the coal dealers and the board of education of Kingston, and most school boards throughout the county which require a large amount of coal. But in all cases, the benefit of gross tons is conditioned on monthly payment.

So far as the county is concerned, the bookkeepers say that these monthly payments for coal and light, if made through the "supply committee," are "illegal," and for many years have been "illegal." As the bookkeepers interpret the law, a bill can be audited only by "county auditors" or by the entire board of supervisors, and a "supply committee" which buys supplies or audits bills is "illegal."

Merchants Promised Prompt Payment.

Supplies for the county are ordered through the supply committee, on requisition from the county officers. In ordering such supplies, the supply committee has promised that payments would be made at the end of the month, when the committee met. Business conditions generally have not been in a flourishing condition throughout the winter, and trade generally has been dull. Because of the promise of prompt monthly settlement of their bills, instead of being compelled to wait until the board of supervisors meets in November and December, and then receiving a warrant payable when the tax levy becomes available the first of the following March, the merchants have made a net price to the county, or in other words, "a discount for cash." The credit of the county has therefore been good, and the county has benefited by net prices for monthly payments, but because these bills are audited by a "supply committee," the bookkeepers say these payments for years back have been "illegal," and if the county treasurer pays

WOMAN AS A TRUST BUSTER. FIRST OF HER SEX IN THIS ROLE. (Miss Kate S. Holmes.)

On April 7, Miss Kate S. Holmes has been appointed as special examiner in the suit, and all the evidence in the cases that involves millions of dollars jeopardizes much-prized "special privileges" is submitted by corporation attorneys and corporation heads to this woman examiner. Miss Holmes is the first woman to take official part in "trust busting." "There's nothing about the position that a woman can't fill as well as a man," says Miss Holmes, "providing, of course, the woman has prepared herself by study and in addition, she must have a splendid constitution as the work is terribly hard, and most of all, she must be level-headed."

Committee Discusses County Contracts.

The regular monthly meeting of the supply committee Monday night was attended by the three members of the committee: Supervisors Philip Schantz, William W. McElhone and Edgar T. Shultz. Chairman William S. Harshorn of the board of supervisors was also present, and also County Attorney John W. Eckert and Supervisors' Clerk Loughran.

County Treasurer Snyder appeared before the committee and made a statement in regard to the comptroller's men, who had told him that bills audited by the "supply committee" are not to be paid by the county treasurer's office. As county treasurer, he would decline to pay the bills audited by the committee.

The committee took up the bills which had been sent in for monthly audit. The bills included the usual bills for lighting and coal, and for the customary supplies and for repairs. The total amount of the bills presented for audit was $1,493.93.

The county's creditors furnished the various goods and supplies in good faith upon the implied contract that the bills would be paid by the supply committee when presented, and the members of the committee were of the opinion that they had full power and authority under the law and the resolution of the board to pay such bills, and that in view of the contracts, either actually expressed as in the case of the electric lighting company, or implied as in the case of other creditors, the bills must be paid in accordance with such promise.

The members of the committee therefore decided to advance personally the sum of $1,493.93 necessary to meet the audit in order that the county's creditors may receive their money and the contracts may not be violated on the part of the county, and to submit a report of the entire transaction to the board of supervisors later. The amount which each of the three members of the committee advances to pay these bills is $497.98.

The Committee's Resolution.

The action of the committee was embodied in the following resolution: Whereas, there have been presented to the supply committee of the board of supervisors for audit and payment, the following bills: Adams Express Company, for expressage, $3.23.

Whereas, the various other bills listed above were ordered by the supply committee upon the implied contract with the said claimants, that they would be audited and paid monthly by the supply committee; and by reason thereof the county is able to purchase supplies for the various county offices and repairs for county buildings at a much lower rate than it would be able to do if bills were audited and paid at the annual session of the board only; and

Whereas, if the bills of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company are not paid in accordance with the aforesaid agreement, the contract between the county and said company will be forfeited and void, and the county will be required in the future to pay the full amount of such electric bills without obtaining the fifty per cent discount therefrom; and if the coal bills are not paid monthly, the county will not receive gross tons and will be required to pay the same price for net tonnage as they now pay for gross tonnage; and if other supply bills are not paid monthly in accordance with the implied contract, the county will lose the benefit of cash payments, and will be required to pay larger prices, if the merchants are forced to wait until the annual session to have their bills audited; and

Whereas, the claimants above named have furnished the various goods and supplies in good faith and upon the implied contract that the bills therefor would be paid by the supply committee when presented; and

Whereas, the supply committee of the board has for a number of years last past audited and paid the supply bills in this manner, thereby saving to the county many thousands of dollars; and

Whereas, the representatives of the comptroller's office who are now making an examination of the fiscal affairs of the county, have stated to the county treasurer, that in their opinion, he has no right to pay warrants issued by the supply committee; and have advised him to cease paying such warrants; and

Whereas, the county treasurer, acting under such directions has refused to pay any further warrants of said committee; and

Whereas, the members of the committee, Philip Schantz, William W. McElhone, and Edgar T. Shultz, have offered to advance the money to pay the above bills, in order that the county may thereby save the discount on the electric bills, the tonnage on the coal bills, and the reduction in price on other bills; and for the purpose of keeping good the faith and credit of the county; although it is the opinion and belief of this committee that they have full power and authority under the law and the resolution of the board of supervisors to do so; now therefore be it

Resolved, that we, Philip Schantz, Wm. W. McElhone and Edgar T. Shultz, do each of us individually advance the sum of $497.98 making a total of $1,493.93 in order that said claimants may receive their money; and that we report to the board of supervisors when it meets our transaction in relation to the matter, that the board may take proper action in relation thereto.

DRYS CAPTURE MICHIGAN CAPITAL

By Telegram to The Freeman. Detroit, Mich., April 7.—The "drys" won their most notable victory in the elections in Michigan yesterday. Although the net result was the gain of two counties and the loss of the same number, the "drys" carried all of the populous counties contested. Ingham county, including Lansing, the capital of the state, now wet, went dry by over 700 votes. Mecosta county, the home of Governor Ferris, now dry, remains so by an increased majority; Westford, including the city of Cadillac, and Shiawassee, including the city of Owosso, went dry by small majorities.

Clare and Oscoda counties changed from dry to wet.

Despite a near blizzard and bad country roads, the farmers rallied in force, as usual, to the dry cause.

HEAVY SENTENCES FOR SWINDLERS

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, April 7.—Judge Albert Barnes Anderson, in federal court here today, handed down some stiff sentences to the men who were found guilty of using the mails to defraud in connection with the straw linen swindle which is said to have taken about $2,500,000 of the pockets of trusting investors.

The judge meted out a six year sentence in Atlanta prison to George H. Middlebrook, president of the Sterling Debutante Company, which acted as the holding company, and gave the same term to Harry H. Platt and Secretary Frank W. Schumacher. Benjamin C. Mudge, the inventor, got four years, and Elwyn A. Barron, formerly dramatic editor of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, who acted as publicity agent for the concern, Captain W. S. Edwards, treasurer, and Wilbur M. Stone got three years each.

In meeting out the sentences Judge Anderson said: "The itching palm of some financial men in New York, who try to defraud the rest of the nation, must be cured."

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, April 6.—The Ellenville high school basketball team went to Monticello Friday night by special train, accompanied by two hundred people and came back at 1:30 Saturday morning leaving the victory they expected to win behind at Monticello. The Monticello theatre was crowded with eight hundred people to see the contest and all were well repaid by seeing an excellent contest. Ellenville was outclassed on this occasion but good judges pronounced the two teams as very evenly matched. The first half, under the A. A. U. rules, was won by Monticello, 8 to 5. The last half was played "open game." Here Ellenville expected to win but Monticello forged ahead from the start and won the game by 21 to 17. The Ellenville contingent was accompanied by the Ellenville martial corps and much pocket money, a large amount of which was bet on the game and left at Monticello.

There were large congregations present at the M. E. Church morning and evening on Sunday and two very excellent sermons were delivered by the Rev. W. L. Steiner of the Reformed Church. At the morning service Guy L. Gould sang "The Palms," which was well received. The Sunday school of the Reformed Church joined with the M. E. Sunday school and the lesson session was conducted by Robert Bonnyman, which proved very interesting. The Young People's Society of the Reformed Church also joined with the Epworth League members at their service at 6:45 o'clock and a very helpful time was spent together. It was a union of services throughout the day, and a day long to be remembered.

9890-9885.—A Charming Gown Suitable for Many Occasions.

Chiffon taffeta in a pretty shade of tan with embroidered crepe for the vest, was used to make this attractive model. The skirt is gracefully draped in back and front, and the waist, which is specially suited to slender figures, has some new style features. A tiny undervest of the silk is outlined by the over vest of crepe, and is topped by a little yoke of lace. The sleeve, close fitting at its lower part, meets the long shoulder at the upper part of the arm. The waist pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. The skirt in 5 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inches waist measure. It requires 5 1/4 yards of 44 inch material for a medium size, for the entire dress. The skirt measures 1 1/4 yards at the foot.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c for each pattern in silver or stamps by The Freeman Pattern Department. Be sure to state size wanted.

The Tavern at Old Hadley

An Episode In the Days of Ghosts and Witches

By F. A. MITCHEL

There is a town in Massachusetts that smacks as much, if not more, of the early colonial times than any other in North America. Its name is Hadley, and they call it Old Hadley, but why it is considered necessary to mention the fact of its age is not apparent. Certainly no one would ever look upon it as young Hadley.

Land was cheap when Hadley was settled. Consequently they laid out the main street of the town as wide as a modern block is long, with two rows of trees on each side, a row within a stone's throw of the houses, the other row within calling distance of the houses on the other side—that is, by a strong pair of lungs.

Later the settlers laid out another street not far from the first, but since there has never been use for two parallel streets in Hadley the first is now deserted. But the same trees planted several hundred years ago still stand there.

At one end of the street to which the town was moved there is a dwelling which in the olden time was the tavern. The bar is still there over which formerly passed many a mug of flip, but it is now dry. The visitor looks longingly upon it, half expecting to see the landlord hand out the steaming beverage, then turns away in disappointment, and the curtain that hides the bar is lowered.

One cheerless night long ago when the trees were throwing their great arms about in the wind a party sat in this barroom endeavoring to bear up against the weather by a frequent calling on the landlord for flip. They said it was the weather that rendered the stimulant necessary, but that was an age of superstition, and the real reason for their potations was a fear of ghosts. Every time a gust of wind would shriek through the trees above them the color would leave their faces, and when it had died away, moaning as it went, they would order a fresh fortification to brace them against the next gust.

"There's witches in that wind," remarked one of the party, a man with a red head and a green coat. "I can tell 'em. Hark! Whenever you hear those shrieks, followed by low walls, you may be sure the witches are riding over the tops of the trees."

"Yes," chimed in a shriveled old man in a plaid waistcoat and extra sized buckles on his shoes, "and they don't always keep ridin' on the trees; sometimes they come down and get inside of some miserable sinner. And they don't all keep around Salem neither. They say there's a girl down to Holyoke that was caught the other day vomitin' crooked pins."

"It isn't the witches that make a man's marrow freeze up," said a youngster of eighteen, trembling as he spoke. "I heard the other day that a ghost was going round in the flesh."

"You don't mean it?" exclaimed the man in the plaid waistcoat, taking his clay pipe from his mouth that his chattering teeth might not bite off the stem. "I hope he won't come in here."

At that moment there was heard without a creaking and a splashing, and in a few minutes the Springfield coach drove up to the door. Among those who alighted was a man with a waxy complexion and dark rings around his eyes. As he stalked with a measured tread into the tavern every one looked at him. The man in the plaid waistcoat made his escape through a rear door. Another arrival, the exact opposite of the waxy faced man—a rosy checked young fellow—shook the wet off him, kicked the mud off his boots and said:

"A mug of flip, landlord, and be quick about it."

The landlord scuttled back for the beverage, and the rosy checked man looked about him for a seat. The waxy faced man had seated himself at a table where there were others, but one by one they had arisen and gone somewhere else. The red checked party marched up to the table where the ghostly looking man sat and, drawing out a chair, settled himself in it. The others in the room looked on with holy horror, for the man's waxy flesh and dark rimmed eyes gave him the appearance of being an animated corpse.

"Friend," said a rosy man, "will you have a mug punch with me? You look as if you needed something to warm you up."
"I'm not to be warmed," replied the other in a sepulchral voice.
"Where did you get that earthy smell there is about you?"
"Young man, do you wish to communicate with the dead?"
"Reckon I'm doin' that now."
"Go up to your room, blow out the candle, and you'll see your grandfather."

"Who'll bring him?"
"I will."
"You! Do you suppose I'm going upstairs to sit in a cold room in the dark while you stand here with your nose in a mug steaming punch? Thank you, I know when I am well off. However, I've 10 shillings in my pocket. I'll bet you they can't call up the ghost of my grandfather or any other ghost."

"Ten shillings!" pilled the waxy man contemptuously. "Do you suppose that I court merial things?"
"Well, if you don't want the money you can give it for charity."
"Charity! Yes, buy what is 10 shillings for charity? Ake it £10 and I consent."

His vis-a-vis looked through his pockets and found only 10 shillings and a few coppers.

"Friends," he said, "this man is an impostor. He is going about trying to impress people with the belief that he has something supernatural about him. If you'll stand by me I'll show him up. Raise the £10 among you to match his stake, and you'll be the richer by that amount."

This gave courage to the others, and a desire sprang up among those present to discover whether the waxy man was really one fin the dead or playing on their credulity. But it must be remembered that a desire for money was as fixed among our ancestors as in us. An effort was made to raise the stake, but failed, since there was not so much money among the company. The most that could be obtained was £6. However, the waxy man generously offered to accept this stake instead of the larger amount, and the money was put up on both sides.

"Who's to hold the takes?" asked the rosy checked man. "For my part, I would be willing that the man with whom I am betting should do so—that is, if he remains here in this room till the wager is settled."

"I hold the money!" replied the other sternly. "I never touch money except—except when I am as men are. Hold the stakes yourself!"

He said this in such a ghostly tone that it brought back something of the former fear of those present. So great was the awe that the gaping settlers did not think to protest when the rosy checked man stuffed the money in his pocket and, taking a candle, started upstairs.

"What number, landlord?" he asked.

"No. 8," replied the landlord, handing him a key.

When the man's footsteps had died away, a profound silence fell on the house. The man from the grave sat motionless, alone, at his table, and nearly every eye in the room was fixed upon him. The wind, which had continued to blow, gave several prolonged howls at the end of which the man who had gone upstairs was heard to give a shriek, indicating some frightful experience. The man who had agreed to introduce him to his grandfather rolled his eyes about over the company, as if in triumph. No one stirred. Presently the landlord plucked up courage and started upstairs.

He was followed first by the most courageous, afterward by the others. The door of No. 8 was found to be locked. The landlord called to the man within, but, receiving no answer, he broke it down and found the chamber empty.

"He's been spirited away," suggested the man with the plain waistcoat, shuddering.

"Didn't I tell you," said the youngster who had made the prediction, "that a ghost was going around in the flesh? He's the man downstairs."

By this time it was noticed that a sash in the bedroom was open, and it occurred to the landlord that the occupant had dropped out through the window. It was no great distance to the ground and a very easy fall.

"My friends," he said thoughtfully, "it's my opinion we've been robbed. He's gone with the money."

He hurried downstairs to find the waxy man. He, too, had vanished.

"What say you, friends?" said the landlord. "Shall we give chase to these rascals?"

"What!" protested the man with the red head and green coat. "Give chase on a night like this? I prefer to lose the few shillings I contributed to curiosity."

"No one has lost very much," said the landlord. "Come, gentlemen. We may as well drown our disappointment. I'll brew a bowl of punch for the purpose."

A couple of hundred years have passed since this episode took place in the tavern at Old Hadley. The low building still stands on the broad street. Of a windy night there is a thrashing of branches, a moaning in the trees, but the age of ghosts and witches has passed, and the present inhabitants turn over in their beds without a shudder.

Appetites.
Sir John Lade and the duke of Queensberry ("Old Q.") once laid a wager for £1,000 on who should produce a man to eat the most at one sitting. The duke could not attend the contest, but his representative wrote: "I have no time to state particulars, but merely to acquaint your grace that your man beat his antagonist by a pig and an apple pie." What must they have eaten!—London Chronicle.

Few There Are.
Blessed is the man who discovers in the hour of his adversity that he has a lot more friends than he thought he had—but he is scarce.

POULTRY
FACTS*REARING GOSLINGS NOT HARD

Long Brooding Is Unnecessary and an Ordinary Hen Coop Will Accommodate Three or Four.

(By W. ROBINSON.)

I have always used large, full feathered hens for hatchings, only allowing the geese to sit on the last eggs of the season. A good broody hen will steadily sit the 30 days occupied in the incubation of these eggs.

If she be given no more than four eggs and they are set in an earth nest and turned once daily they should in almost every case produce vigorous goslings if the parent birds are healthy and well matured.

Some people find a difficulty during the early days of raising in the tendency of the birds to fall upon their backs and an inability to right themselves without assistance, necessitating combined watchfulness or loss.

This, however, is a nuisance that may be avoided by the use of the eggs of mature, sound stock only, the weakness being absent in the progeny of old birds in good breeding condition.

The actual rearing presents no difficulties to one qualified in poultry raising. Long brooding is unnecessary and an ordinary hen coop is sufficient to accommodate three or four goslings and a hen as long as it is necessary to leave the latter in charge, but during the first days the gosling's run, which should be on short grass, should be limited.

The best diet is a simple one and for the first few days I have found nothing better than stale bread well soaked and squeezed moderately dry and mixed with a liberal allowance of dandelion leaves, well chopped and free from stringy pieces. Biscuit meal may be used instead of the stale bread but it is more expensive and the results are no better.

By the middle of the first week ground oats should take the place of the bread, mixed with a sufficient quantity of grit to make the mixture crumbly, the dandelions being combined.

The green food may be gradually reduced and finally abandoned when the young birds are grazing freely. They should commence grazing at about a week old.

Upon a good grazing ground and with a sufficient supply of soft food mixture, of which ground oats should be the staple ingredient, goslings will progress rapidly.

BROODER FOR SMALL CHICKS

Large Barrel Cut in Half as Shown in Illustration Will Be Found Convenient.

A very simple brooder can be constructed by cutting a sugar barrel in half and using one part in the manner described. Line the inside of the half barrel with paper and then cover this with old flannel cloth. Make a cover for the top and line it in the same manner. At the bottom cut a hole in the edge, about four inches deep and four inches wide, and provide a cover or door. The inside is kept warm by filling a jug with boiling water and setting it within, changing the water both morning and night. When the temperature outside is ten degrees the interior can be kept at 90 or 100 degrees, but the jug must be refilled with boiling water at least twice a day.—Popular Mechanics.

Brooder for Chicks.

Color is largely a matter of breed. The color character in eggs has no relation whatsoever to their food value. An egg with a white shell does not differ in composition from one with a brown shell. Eggs of the Mediterranean breeds are white, while those of the Asiatic breeds are brown. In general the eggs of the American breeds are also brown, but are rarely as uniform in color as the other two classes. Uniformity in color regardless of whether eggs are white or brown should be sought for by the poultryman. A good appearance to a crate of eggs is procured only when uniformity in size, shape and color is present.

Water Essential.
Clean, fresh water is one of the most essentials that we can think of for the healthy fowls. As the greater portion of the egg is water, they should be supplied with a liberal supply at all times. It should be placed in such a way that it will be within easy access.

Peculiar Winged Creatures.
In Borneo winged creatures are encountered where one would least expect them. Flying fish, the size of herrings, are found in all the waters, and there is the flying fox, the well-known fruit-eating bat, which the Malays call "kruang."

PREPARING FOR A WHIRLWIND FINISH W. H. RIDER'S BIG PIANO SALE ENDS SATURDAY NIGHT!

Of all the Piano Sales we've ever had, this room-making event surely breaks the record. The biggest Piano values and the lowest prices at which equally good instruments were ever offered in Kingston will help us to make a whirlwind finish of this event Saturday night. And when the curtain is finally rung down, those who did not embrace our very remarkable Piano opportunities will have abundant cause for regret.

We "can now see daylight" on our salesroom floor, but, as we promised at the outset to continue the sale for two weeks, we shall keep our promise and give the advertised bargains until the last moment. So hurry along and talk it over with us.

We ratify promises by performance. You'll find our Pianos as good in the home as they are in the salesroom. Besides, in buying here you get a selection from the best lines of Pianos ever represented by one house in the Hudson River Valley, and from a stock that is unrivaled in size in this territory. Don't be a "lobster" and get caught by a trap of an old Piano. Come here and get a heaping measure of value for your money.

"It isn't the witches that make a man's marrow freeze up," said a youngster of eighteen, trembling as he spoke. "I heard the other day that a ghost was going round in the flesh."

"You don't mean it!" exclaimed the man in the plaid waistcoat, taking his clay pipe from his mouth that his chattering teeth might not bite off the stem. "I hope he won't come in here."

At that moment there was heard without a creaking and a splashing, and in a few minutes the Springfield coach drove up to the door. Among those who alighted was a man with a waxy complexion and dark rings around his eyes. As he stalked with a measured tread into the tavern every one looked at him. The man in the plaid waistcoat made his escape through a rear door. Another arrival, the exact opposite of the waxy faced man—a rose-cheeked young fellow—shook the wet off him, kicked the mud off his boots and said:

"A mug of flip, landlord, and be quick about it."

The landlord scuttled back for the beverage, and the rose-cheeked man looked about him for a seat. The waxy faced man had seated himself at a table where there were others, but one by one they had arisen and gone somewhere else. The red-cheeked party marched up to the table where the ghostly looking man sat and, drawing out a chair, settled himself in it. The others in the room looked on with holy horror, for the man's waxy flesh and dark rimmed eyes gave him the appearance of being an animated corpse.

"Friend," said a rosy man, "will you have a mug punch with me? You look as if you needed something to warm you up."

"I'm not to be warmed," replied the other in a sepulchral voice.

"Where did you get that earthy smell there is about you?"

"Young man, do you wish to communicate with the dead?"

"Reckon I'm dot that now."

"Go up to your room, blow out the candle, and you'll see your grandfather."

"Who'll bring him?"

"I will."

"You! Do you suppose I'm going up stairs to sit in a cold room in the dark while you sit down here with your nose in a mug steaming punch? Thank you, I know I am well off. However, I've 10 shillings in my pocket. I'll bet you they can't call up the ghost of my grandfather or any other ghost."

"Ten shillings!" pined the waxy man contemptuously. "Do you suppose that I court meretricious things?"

"Well, if you don't want the money you can give it for charity."

"Charity! Yes, but what is 10 shillings for charity? Ake it £10 and I consent."

His vis-a-vis looked through his pockets and found only 10 shillings and a few coppers.

"Friends," he said, "this man is an impostor. He is going about trying to impress people with the belief that he has something supernatural about him. If you'll stand by me I'll show him up. Raise the £10 among you to match his stake, and you'll be the richer by that amount."

This gave courage to the others, and a desire sprang up among those present to discover whether the waxy man was really one of the dead or playing on their credulity. But it must be remembered that a desire for money was as fixed among our ancestors as in us. An effort was made to raise the stake, but failed, since there was not so much money among the company. The most that could be obtained was £6. However, the waxy man generously offered to accept this stake instead of the larger amount, and the money was put up on both sides.

"Who's to hold the stakes?" asked the rosy cheeked man. "For my part, I would be willing that the man with whom I am betting should do so—that is, if he remains here in this room till the wager is settled."

"I hold the money!" replied the other sternly. "I never touch money except—except when I am as men are. Hold the stakes yourself!"

He said this in such a ghostly tone that it brought back something of the former fear of those present. So great was the awe that the gaping settlers did not think to protest when the rosy cheeked man stuffed the money in his pocket and, taking a candle, started upstairs.

"What number, landlord?" he asked.

"No. 8," replied the landlord, handing him a key.

When the man's footsteps had died away, a profound silence fell on the house. The man from the grave sat motionless, staring at his table, and nearly every eye in the room was fixed upon him. The wind, which had continued to blow, gave several prolonged howls at the end of which the man who had gone upstairs was heard to give a shriek, indicating some frightful experience. The man who had agreed to introduce him to his grandfather rolled his eyes about over the company, as if in triumph. No one stirred. Presently the landlord plucked up courage and started upstairs. He was followed first by the most courageous, afterward by the others. The door of No. 8 was found to be locked. The landlord called to the man within, but, receiving no answer, he broke it down and found the chamber empty.

"He's been spirited away," suggested the man with the plain waistcoat, shuddering.

"Didn't I tell you," said the youngster who had made the prediction, "that a ghost was going around in the flesh? He's the man downstairs."

By this time it was noticed that a sash in the bedroom was open, and it occurred to the landlord that the occupant had dropped out through the window. It was no great distance to the ground and a very easy fall.

"My friends," he said thoughtfully, "it's my opinion we've been robbed. He's gone with the money."

He hurried downstairs to find the waxy man. He, too, had vanished.

"What say you, friends?" said the landlord. "Shall we give chase to these rascals?"

"What!" protested the man with the red head and green coat. "Give chase on a night like this? I prefer to lose the few shillings I contributed to curiosity."

"No one has lost very much," said the landlord. "Come, gentlemen. We may as well down our disappointment. I'll brew a bowl of punch for the purpose."

A couple of hundred years have passed since this episode took place in the tavern at Old Hadley. The low building still stands on the broad street. Of a windy night there is a thrashing of branches, a moaning in the trees, but the age of ghosts and witches has passed, and the present inhabitants turn over in their beds without a shudder.

Appetites.

Sir John Lade and the duke of Queensberry ("Old Q.") once laid a wager for £1,000 on who should produce a man to eat the most at one sitting. The duke could not attend the contest, but his representative wrote: "I have no time to state particulars, but merely to acquaint your grace that your man beat his antagonist by a pig and an apple pie." What must they have eaten!—London Chronicle.

Few There Are.

Blessed is the man who discovers in the hour of his adversity that he has a lot more friends than he thought he had—but he is scarce.

POULTRY FACTS*REARING GOSLINGS NOT HARD

Long Brooding is Unnecessary and an Ordinary Hen Coop Will Accommodate Three or Four.

(By W. ROBINSON.)

I have always used large, full feathered hens for hatching, only allowing the geese to sit on the last eggs of the season. A good broody hen will steadily sit the 30 days occupied in the incubation of these eggs.

If she be given no more than four eggs and they are set in an earth nest and turned once daily they should in almost every case produce vigorous goslings if the parent birds are healthy and well matured.

Some people find a difficulty during the early days of raising in the tendency of the birds to fall upon their backs and an inability to right themselves without assistance, necessitating combined watchfulness or loss.

This, however, is a nuisance that may be avoided by the use of the eggs of mature, sound stock only, the weakness being absent in the progeny of old birds in good breeding condition.

The actual rearing presents no difficulties to one qualified in poultry raising. Long brooding is unnecessary and an ordinary hen coop is sufficient to accommodate three or four goslings and a hen as long as it is necessary to leave the latter in charge, but during the first days the gosling's run, which should be on short grass, should be limited.

The best diet is a simple one and for the first few days I have found nothing better than stale bread well soaked and squeezed moderately dry and mixed with a liberal allowance of dandelion leaves, well chopped and free from stringy pieces. Biscuit meal may be used instead of the stale bread but it is more expensive and the results are no better.

By the middle of the first week ground oats should take the place of the bread, mixed with a sufficient quantity of grit to make the mixture crumbly, the dandelions being combined.

The green food may be gradually reduced and finally abandoned when the young birds are grazing freely. They should commence grazing at about a week old.

Upon a good grazing ground and with a sufficient supply of soft food mixture, of which ground oats should be the staple ingredient, goslings will progress rapidly.

BROODER FOR SMALL ORCHIDS

Large Barrel Cut in Half as Shown in Illustration Will Be Found Convenient.

A very simple brooder can be constructed by cutting a sugar barrel in half and using one part in the manner described. Line the inside of the half barrel with paper and then cover this with old flannel cloth. Make a cover for the top and line it in the same manner. At the bottom cut a hole in the edge, about four inches deep and four inches wide, and provide a cover or door. The inside is kept warm by filling a jug with boiling water and setting it within, changing the water both morning and night. When the temperature outside is ten degrees the interior can be kept at 90 or 100 degrees, but the jug must be refilled with boiling water at least twice a day.—Popular Mechanics.

er or door. The inside is kept warm by filling a jug with boiling water and setting it within, changing the water both morning and night. When the temperature outside is ten degrees the interior can be kept at 90 or 100 degrees, but the jug must be refilled with boiling water at least twice a day.—Popular Mechanics.

Color.

Color is largely a matter of breed. The color character in eggs has no relation whatsoever to their food value. An egg with a white shell does not differ in composition from one with a brown shell. Eggs of the Mediterranean breeds are white, while those of the Asiatic breeds are brown. In general the eggs of the American breeds are also brown, but are rarely as uniform in color as the other two classes. Uniformity in color regardless of whether eggs are white or brown should be sought for by the poultryman. A good appearance to a crate of eggs is procured only when uniformity in size, shape and color is present.

Water Essential.

Clean, fresh water is one of the most essentials that we can think of for the healthy fowl. As the greater portion of the egg is water, they should be supplied with a liberal supply at all times. It should be placed in such a way that it will be within easy access.

Peculiar Winged Creatures.

In Borneo winged creatures are encountered where one would least expect them. Flying fish, the size of herrings, are found in all the waters, and there is the flying fox, the well-known fruit-eating bat, which the Malays call "krang."

W. H. RIDER'S BIG PIANO SALE

ENDS SATURDAY NIGHT!

Of all the Piano Sales we've ever had, this room-making event surely breaks the record. The biggest Piano values and the lowest prices at which equally good instruments were ever offered in Kingston will help us to make a whirlwind finish of this event Saturday night. And when the curtain is finally rung down, those who did not embrace our very remarkable Piano opportunities will have abundant cause for regret.

We "can now see daylight" on our salesroom floor, but, as we promised at the outset to continue the sale for two weeks, we shall keep our promise and give the advertised bargain until the last moment. So hurry along and talk it over with us.

We ratify promises by performance. You'll find our Pianos as good in the home as they are in the salesroom. Besides, in buying here you get a selection from the best lines of Pianos ever represented by one house in the Hudson River Valley, and from a stock that is unrivalled in size in this territory. Don't be a "lobster" and get caught by a trap of an old Piano. Come here and get a heaping measure of value for your money.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 7, 1914.

Governor Glynn has spent two days in reading the record of the trial of the gunmen convicted of killing the gambler Rosenthal, in order that he may determine whether he ought to give them a respite from electrocution until after Becker is tried again. This is a task which should never be imposed on a governor. It is a judicial matter which can be properly determined only by trained lawyers. The pardoning power has been abused shamefully by more than one of our chief executives, which is inevitable in the very nature of things. It is only with the utmost exertion of a strong will that one can refuse the pleas of weeping relatives of condemned men, and a governor cannot well refuse interviews to such persons. In some states there are pardon boards which decide such cases, and they are reported to work quite satisfactorily.

The Governor has vetoed sixteen bills authorizing the Court of Claims to pass upon claims against the State, giving as a reason that the general law governing such matters should be made so broad that there would be no necessity for special legislation. This is true enough, but it is pretty hard upon claimants who have to wait for the law to be changed. There has been talk for years in favor of such general legislation as would relieve the Legislature of the necessity of considering special and local bills, but nothing is ever done to relieve the situation. It was supposed that the bill providing for municipal home rule would be effective, but there has been no decrease in the usual number of charter amendments this year. If the Governor should also veto all bills of the latter description it might result in hastening the enactment of necessary general laws.

There is a good deal of sentiment against the use of motor cars and hearses at funerals, although these contrivances seem to be slowly overcoming the prejudice, which really cannot be defended logically. It will be a much longer time before flying machines are generally used for transporting corpses to cemeteries, although a millionaire who died in St. Petersburg the other day was carried in this way in accordance with the terms of his will, the airman who officiated receiving $100,000 for his services, which was not an overpayment in view of the fact that he made a bad landing and was all but fatally injured. Experienced undertakers would not be made nervous by the proximity of a dead person, and by learning to run aeroplanes they would be enabled in safety to conduct strictly up to date funerals, for which, of course, they would charge accordingly.

There is reason to believe that a majority of the persons in favor of woman suffrage feel that way because they are under the impression that women are natural foes of alcoholic drinks and would vote for abolishing them. Every time the issue is voted on we hear stories about the brewers and distillers furnishing funds to the "antis." The folly of this notion is not forth in a statement by the Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, which calls attention to the fact that "in no State in which women have voted on the question has State-wide prohibition ever been adopted, while nine States where men alone vote have State-wide prohibition. This shows how woefully the suffragists have misled many people." The document goes on to present some significant facts. Pasadena, Cal., which had always been a "dry" city, went "wet" at the first election after women got the vote. Colorado defeated prohibition by a 40,000 majority in 1912. Los Angeles voted two to one against the saloons before women had a vote, and immediately after they got it the city went three to one for the saloons. A long list of similar instances is given. Moreover, gambling was illegal in Wyoming, as nearly everywhere else, before women had votes, but when they did get them a law was actually passed, and is still on the statute books, legalizing gambling. Nowhere has woman suffrage led to the passing of laws for the promotion of morality. The idea that women are better than men is pleasant to entertain, but there is nothing to it. Each sex has its peculiar virtues and vices, but they add up to the same thing.

IN THE HOLY LAND.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

All the way from the Holy Land comes the story that times are changing, so far as women are concerned and that the docile creatures of the past are boldly dropping some of the customs followed from the time of Biblical days.

A writer in the "National Geographic Magazine," in telling some of his experiences in that far-away country of many traditions, relates a funny little conversation overheard between two men. They were in a vineyard just outside a village nestled between Jerusalem and Bethlehem, and the chief speaker was complaining to the other of the way things went in his home.

In the good old days when he was young, he said, he ruled his wife—his "family," he called her—with a hard heart and an iron hand because her ways were not pleasing to his mother, and he "used to beat her much." Even then, his father had seen the handwriting on the wall and often warned him that he better "go slow," for women were coming into their own, and if he continued to treat his wife like that—why every woman would rise up against him, for their ways were perverse and there was no such thing as changing them. He told him that the days of men were passed, but he did not believe it—not then.

But since then he has had an awakening. In times gone by, not a woman would dare go to her father's house or the house of a neighbor without first asking her husband's pleasure in the matter and gaining his consent if possible. But now! She just treks ahead as if he did not matter, and leaves him to like it or not, as may be. And in the comfortable past the husband majestically rode astride a donkey, while the wife ambled along in the rear, with her arms sedately folded and a well-laden basket firmly poised on her head. Women never were seen riding then, but all that is changed, and today it is a common sight to see a woman astride a donkey, and likely as not, singing aloud as she goes; at least, until she catches a glimpse of a man, when she may grow quiet for the time.

Long ago a wife never called her husband by his first name, but that progressive wife of his actually calls him "Esa" right in the most public of places, and he—but times have changed so that he just holds his peace. Formerly, when passing men on the road, women would cover their faces with their hands and down would go their eyes to the ground; but today, if you please, they look you right in the eye, and if you do not want to lose every notion of their shyness, their gentleness and all that, yours must be the eyes to drop down.

And they used to pray: "O Preserver, protect me from my husband's displeasure!" But not any more, for that prayer is reversed, and it is the husband who prays aloud for protection.

But one fancies that that man narrating his woes grew a bit too imaginative there in the vineyard and multiplied the advancements made by the Bedouin women and the others living within the shadows of the Holy Land. At any rate, one reads that the man buys his wife, the same as of old, with everybody else taking a hand in the sale but the woman most interested; and one also reads that girl-babies are not over-welcomed. Strange, too, the writer says, since in marriage a girl generally brings a pretty fair price and since, with the exception of a little reserved for bridal trinkets and the like, the purchase-money all goes to the father, just "as if he had sold some cattle or produce."

And beside, he produces a picture showing a big, dignified husband comfortably riding a peaceful little donkey, while the wife remains in the rear, even as the wives in the days so plaintively bemoaned. But there's a look in her eye that seems to foretell that not always will she ride in the rear!

Well, maybe the women of the Holy Land have lost some of their docility, but one really thinks they can afford to lose very much more. And once they peep over the fence that separates them from the outside world, there surely will be more than one whispered conference held in a vineyard, more than one protesting husband shocked at the difference between the then and the now.

But, after all, will they be shocked or will they be pleased, after a few comfortable readjustments are made?

Precocity.

"The Filipinos will get their independence, but not for years to come. The Filipinos are intelligent, but they are not precocious. They don't resemble little Willie."

The speaker was Representative Gorman of Illinois. He continued: "Little Willie is really too precocious. I met him the other day with his school-bag under his arm."

"Well, well," said I, "and so you go to school now, eh?" "Sure, mika," said little Willie. "Ain't I over six?"

"And do you love your teacher?" I asked.

"Aber nit," said little Willie. "The old hen's too old for me."—Chicago Record Herald.

Snake Was Popular.

Representative J. H. Small of North Carolina lives in a prohibition state, and a thirsty man has to hunt a doctor and get a prescription if he wants to enjoy himself according to a bibulous standard.

But, it seems there are ways of getting around the law—at least, there are rumors afoot that whiskey has been known to be dispensed even when no license was present. But they are only vague rumors and have never been tracked to their lair.

According to Mr. Small, it seems a visitor at one of the fashionable hotels there last summer wanted something to cool him off and he wanted it awful bad. His throat felt like the bottom of the great salt desert, and the tinkle of imaginary ice in an imaginary jug made his mouth water.

So he hid himself off to the land-lord and asked for a bit of firewater. But he pleaded in vain.

"There is only one circumstance in which I can let a man have a drink," said the proprietor, "and that is when he is snakebitten."

"Is that so," exclaimed the visitor, "well, have you got any snakes around here that can accommodate me?"

"I have a snake," replied the land-lord slowly, "but you can't get him just now. He is busy, and then, too, he is engaged for three weeks ahead!"—Washington Star.

Her Prayer.

"Speaking of the youngsters," smilingly remarked Congressman Maurice Connolly of Iowa, "reminds me of little five-year-old Bessie, who recently spent the night with a woman friend of her parents."

"Everything was sweet and beautiful until bedtime came, when little Bessie dropped to her chubby knees and clasped her hands, fully expecting the prompting that she usually got at home."

"But there was no prompting from the hostess, and long was the silence. Finally Bessie realized that it was up to her."

"Please, Lord," she softly said, "you will have to excuse me tonight. I can't remember my prayers, and I'm staying with a lady that don't know any."—New Globe.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING ON LEGISLATIVE BILL AMENDING CHARTER OF THE CITY OF KINGSTON.

To Whom It May Concern, Greeting: I, PALMER CANFIELD, JR., Mayor of the City of Kingston, N. Y., hereby give NOTICE that a PUBLIC HEARING concerning the bill passed by the Legislature of the State of New York, being Senate Bill Printed No. 1004, 1st Sess., 1913, entitled "An Act to amend Chapter 108 of the Laws of 1912, in relation to the City of Kingston, to revise the charter of said city and to establish a city court therein and define its jurisdiction and powers, generally," will be held and afforded before the Mayor and the Common Council of the City of Kingston, N. Y., at the Common Council Chamber, in the City Hall in said city, on the 10th day of April, 1914, at 7:30 o'clock p. m., of that day, and all persons may then and there be heard concerning the same.

The bill amends the City Charter generally in that it changes the fiscal year from January first to December thirty-first inclusive, instead of being from December first to November thirty-first inclusive, as it is at the present time, and in that it provides for the payment of school taxes in August of each year instead of at the time of the payment of the general taxes, and in that it provides for the payment of city taxes other than school taxes in February of each year, and in that it provides for the appointment of a board of public works to consist of four members to be appointed by the Mayor and also the Mayor, which board will have jurisdiction over the streets, sewers and parks, etc., of the city, and in that it provides for the appointment of a board of gas and electricity to consist of three members to be appointed by the Mayor, which board will have jurisdiction over the city public lighting, etc., and in that it provides for the appointment by the Mayor of a secretary whose duties are to assist in the various city departments in the City Hall as the Mayor designates, etc., and in that it abolishes the office of deputy city clerk and in that it consolidates the present city court and the present recorder's court, and provides for only one court for both civil and criminal jurisdiction to be known as the city court, and provides for the appointment of the city judge by the Mayor, and the appointment by the city judge of a clerk who shall be a stenographer and of a person to act as probation officer and marshal, etc., and in that it provides for the election of an alderman-at-large, who is voted for throughout the city, and who presides at the meetings of the common council and who exercises the duties of an alderman except that he votes only in case of a tie vote, and in that it provides for the payment to the alderman for attendance at each meeting of the common council the sum of five dollars, beginning January first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, and in that it changes the name of the Alms Board to the Board of Charities, and the name of the Alms House to City Home, and in that it changes and amends other provisions and sections of the present city charter.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of Kingston, N. Y., to be affixed this sixth day of April, 1914.

(City Seal)

PALMER CANFIELD, JR., Mayor of the City of Kingston, N. Y.

VILLA TELLS WHY HE EXPELLED SPANISH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Juarez, Mexico, April 7.—Late dispatches received here from Torreon have failed to clear up the mystery surrounding the movement of Federal and Constitutional troops on the desert east of that city, but it is the general belief here today that General Velasco, the Huerta commander, has escaped with his main army.

It is rumored that the rebel cavalry of General Hernandez was forced to abandon its pursuit of the Federals at San Pedro after reinforcements headed by General Maas and General De Moure had joined Velasco's men and that the united Federal forces of 9,000 men are moving to assault General Villa in Torreon.

Doubt was cast on this rumor, however, by a brief announcement from General Villa that he would soon return to Chihuahua and then come to Juarez for a conference with General Carranza.

"After that," he said, "we shall attack Monterey. In my assault upon that city I expect to have my artillery armed with the latest American cannon and good ammunition, which will make the capture of that city less difficult than was the overthrow of Torreon."

Adverse received here state that pathetic scenes attended the expulsion of Spaniards from Torreon. Men, women and children wept and begged Villa not to seize their possessions and drive them out penniless, but he spurned all pleas and ordered his soldiers to drive the supplicants into the railroad cars provided for their use. The first train of refugees is expected to arrive here tonight or early tomorrow. Railroad officials were notified that there were 300 Spaniards on the train when it left Torreon.

A dispatch to Torreon asking Villa why he had expelled the Spaniards brought this reply:

"It is contrary to the nature of the Spaniard to attend to his own business. Americans, English, French and Germans come to Mexico to make money and devote all their time to making money. They do not mingle in politics. The Spaniards are not content with making money; they want us at their feet."

Villa added that he had received hundreds of congratulatory messages from the United States since he captured Torreon.

"The Americans have certainly shown great fairness during our troubles in Mexico and I shall not forget it," he said.

CLEANER CITY UP TO WOMEN

Those of Better Class Worst Offenders.

DON'T BLAME UNTIDY MAN.

Virtue and Cleanliness Can't Be Legislated Into People—We're Mad on the Subject of Making Laws and Quite Indifferent to Enforcing Them.

By MRS. E. R. HEWITT, President of Women's Municipal League, New York city.

The women who don't meet their own little responsibilities are often the very ones who are on the lookout for bigger ones.

It's a bore to see that our own ash cans are of the right size, and it's so much more interesting to bustle about and make the public conscious of its responsibility about something.

We women of the better class are the worst offenders, because we know what we ought to do, and we don't do it. Somehow we feel outside of the law. The poor are made to feel its restrictions much more sharply.

Cleanliness is an instinct with women that has survived in spite of the fact that we are all fundamentally lazy and many are untidy. It has survived, I think, because it makes for health. I don't blame the men for being untidy, because it isn't their fault. We haven't brought them up properly, and nature didn't make them so to begin with. We haven't been stern enough with them. For one thing, we don't make them ashamed to look us in the eye when they come into the house just after throwing a cigar away in the street before entering. We don't object to their lazy ways so long as they don't bring the stumps in with them. There you have the root of the whole matter—we don't, any of us, feel our own responsibility in the little things that go to make our streets dirty, our city a bad example of municipal sanitation.

You can't legislate virtue and cleanliness into people, but just now we are mad on the subject of making laws and quite indifferent to enforcing them. We are not law abiding citizens; we are chronic breakers of the law. We adore the order that we find in European cities and wonder why we can't have it here. That order is imposed from authority above; here it must come from within if it comes at all. If we don't like that kind of self government we may go and live elsewhere, but while we are here we must abide by our self made rules. If we would have order and good health. Enforcement of the rules of sanitation lies with the woman at the head of the house.

The Woman's Municipal League is making propaganda for a cleaner city by disseminating information about the rules and regulations which we would follow if we tried to be law abiding citizens. It is divided into sections, each of which is captained and organized like a separate county in a state and through which the work is being done. One of the most recent activities of the league was the measuring of ash cans, which revealed a very distressing state of affairs—to wit, that the greater number were oversized and only imposed upon the city's ash can dumper a harder task than his should be.

SPREADING GOSPEL OF CLEANLINESS.

The scope of cleanup day in New York city is being widened. A special hygienic program for schoolboy athletes prominent in cleaning up the town has been arranged as follows:

Go to bed at 8 o'clock after a thorough wash and a cold splash over chest and trunk. Scrub teeth and gums well. Have clothes and books ready for the morrow.

Open bedroom windows at top and bottom.

Get up not a minute later than 7 o'clock. Go through a two minute drill and hygienic exercises. Clean face and neck and scrub hands. Finish up with a big cold splash and hard rub all over. See that feet and legs are clean and rub them hard to get them into condition. Brush teeth and gums thoroughly.

Breakfast and all meals: No coffee, no tea. Drink milk a little at a time. Chew all food to a pulp. Ask your teacher what foods to avoid. No smoking.

Before school look yourself over.

Am I clean from head to toe? Are all my clothes clean and in order down to the skin? Do I stand up like an athlete?

Not What You Pay ---But What You Get!

THE initial investment is NOT the most important thing about buying merchandise. It is the return that counts. It is what you GET for your money that is the main thing. A good article at a good fair price is all that any purchaser can ask, you can ALWAYS get it at this store, sometimes you can get good merchandise at a CHEAP price.

But we sell no "cheap" merchandise, inferior goods bought for little and worth little. This is distinctly a "quality store." Every item in our large stocks must measure up to a certain fixed standard of excellence.

Only worthy goods find a place on our shelves and show cases--only goods which will serve your needs to your lasting satisfaction. You have our personal guarantee backed by our "Money returned" policy that everything purchased at this store is worth the price.

Easter Hats That Are Different

That is the theme of this store, to serve our patrons with something different, something exclusive, something individual, so that the wearer of a VanWagenen hat will have the satisfaction of knowing that the hat she wears will not be found on every other woman. What a tragedy to Milady to see her next door neighbor or a passer-by wearing a hat identical with hers. Our Millinery is so distinctive and so full of character and elusive style, that you will feel at once as though it was made for you alone.

Prices Range from $4 to $50.00

Easter Things for the "Little Folks"

"COSSACKS" OF THE NEW YORK POLICE ROUT I. W. W.'S.

This photograph was taken during the recent free-for-all fight that occurred between a detail of New York police and a mob of I. W. W.'s. The "Workers" were marching to Rutgers Square, where they planned to hold an open air meeting. The I. W. W.'s have been rather active and troublesome in New York of late and the police have been exceptionally vigilant in watching for expected outbreaks of violence. When the line of marchers had been increased to several hundred, two detectives stopped the leader, Joseph O'Carroll, and told him no parade could be continued without a permit. O'Carroll protested in fiery oratory, which incited his followers to begin a demonstration. The detectives placed O'Carroll under arrest and a free-for-all fight followed. The surging mass was charged by the foot police, who waded in slashing right and left with their sticks. They were reinforced by 12 mounted officers who charged the crowd at full speed and caused the rioters to disappear in a most miraculous manner. Twelve arrests were made, but many more heads were cracked.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Isaiah Fuller of this city, which was recently filed in the surrogate's court, was admitted to probate by Surrogate Gill on Monday. The provisions of the will have been heretofore published. The executors are James S. Fuller and Annie K. Fuller. The will was executed July 28, 1909, and witnessed by Judge Betts and John T. Cahill. The value of the estate is $6,000 real estate and over $50,000 personal property. An order was also granted appointing Joseph M. Schaeffer and George Burgevin appraisers of the estate. Betts & Cahill appeared for the executors and Judge Clearwater for Mrs. Fuller.

The will of Joseph C. Connor of Kyserlike was admitted to probate. The testator bequeaths the sum of $100 to the North Marlborough Reformed Church in trust for the care of his burial plot. He bequeaths certain personal belongings to his brother, Lucas Connor and to Connor Roosa; household furniture to Simon Roosa and Ida Roosa; jewelry to Emma Roosa, daughter of Jacob I. Roosa of Goshen; the sum of $400 each to Charles Green of Accord, Connor Roosa of Lyonsville and Marshall Roosa of Kingston; and the balance of his estate equally to his brothers and sisters, William Connor of New Paltz, Peter Connor of Lyonsville, Lucas Roosa and Benjamin Roosa of New Paltz, Rachel Wager of Lyonsville, Charity Barley of Lyonsville and Jane Perry of Shokan. He appoints Charles Green of Accord executor. The will was executed February 2, 1914, and witnessed by Virgil B. Van Wagoner and Hiram Bell, both of this city. The value of the estate is $4,500 personal property. An order was granted appointing Charles C. Hardenburgh and Benjamin Newkirk of the town of Marlborough appraisers. Virgil B. Van Wagoner appeared for the executor.

In the matter of proving the will of Henry B. Hudler of Mt. Tremper, a supplemental citation was issued returnable April 20. D. G. Atkins appeared for the executor.

Letters of administration on the estate of Lucian J. Ostrander of the town of Gardiner were issued to his father, John D. Ostrander. The value of the estate is $100 personal property. Hector Sears appeared for the administrator.

Letters of administration on the estate of Rose Bradley of the town of Saugerties were issued to her sister, Jennie Bradley. The value of the estate is $600 real estate and $25 personal property. Byron L. Davis appeared for the administratrix.

Letters of administration on the estate of George H. Hommel of the town of Saugerties were issued to his brother, Peter B. Hommel. The value of the estate is $250 personal property. Byron L. Davis appeared for the administrator.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of Louise Masten, as executrix of the estate of Matthew L. Masten, of the town of Marlborough, and a decree passing and approving the account was directed to be prepared. John Rusk appeared for the executrix.

A hearing was had in the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of John H. Relyea, as administrator of the estate of Peter J. Relyea, of the town of New Paltz, and a decree passing and approving the account was granted.

A hearing was had in the matter of the intermediate judicial settlement of the account of Albert H. Palmer, as trustee of the estate of John E. Currie, of the town of Marlborough, and a decree passing and approving the account was granted. John Rusk appeared for the trustee.

In the estate of William H. Post, as executor of the estate of Byron C. Post, who was guardian of Alice E. Meyers, a minor, a petition for a final accounting was filed and a citation was issued returnable April 20. Milton O. Auchmoody appeared for the petitioner.

In the matter of the judicial settlement of the account of Irving Ostrander, as administrator of the estate of Ann E. Joby, of the town of Waverling, a supplemental citation was issued returnable May 26. Raymond G. Cox appeared for the petitioner.

The matter of the judicial settlement of the estate of Julia R. M. Russell of the town of Saugerties was adjourned until April 20. Brinier & Canfield appeared for the executor, and Frederick E. W. Darrow for other interested parties.

The matter of the judicial settlement of the estate of John J. Murphy was adjourned to April 22. Judge N. Frank O'Reilly is attorney for the executor and Cunningham & Traver and Everett Fowler are attorneys for other interested parties.

CHAMPS SURE TO WIN VICTORY

Planning a new attack, Capt. Jack Fox, of the Utica basketball team, champions of the New York state league, was confident today of victory over the Camden eastern leaguers in the final battle of the two-game series to be played in Camden this evening.

The Utica five went down to defeat at the hands of Captain Adams' men Monday evening 39-34, their style of defensive play not jibing for an instant with the playing rules in vogue in Camden. The visitors were penalized 34 times to the locals' 13. Captain Adams was right on the job and tallied 21 points on the violations, while Sedran annexed six points via the charity route.

Utica far excelled the locals in scoring from the field, Frankie and Sedran pulling some remarkable shots. Dolin played a fine game for the winners. The lineup and summary:

	FB.	FP.	TP.
Camden.	1	21	23
Adams, lf.	0	0	0
Cashman, rf.	0	0	0
Dolin, c.	4	0	8
Brown, lg.	3	0	6
Herron, rg.	1	0	2
Totals.	9	21	39

	FB.	FP.	TP.
Utica.	5	16	16
Sedran, lf.	6	0	12
Frankie, rf.	0	0	0
Fox, rg.	1	0	2
Cone, lg.	2	0	4
Totals.	14	6	34

Fouls committed—Utica, 34; Camden, 13. Referee—Baetzel.

The Utica basketball management has arranged with the Camden club of the eastern league to appear in Utica on Thursday and Saturday evenings of next week, April 16 and 18.

The Camden team finished in the runner-up position in the recent play-off series in the eastern league and are recognized as being considerably faster than the Tranton five. Their victory over the Utes on Monday evening should make them all the more popular in Utica and undoubtedly a tremendous crowd will greet Jakey Adams and his speed merchants when they play in Utica.

Utes to Play in Wilkes-Barre.

The Utes are scheduled for two games in Wilkes-Barre this week, playing the Independents on Thursday evening and the professional five on Saturday night. These contests should be turned into victories, as the champs will probably not encounter officials with only one eye.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism, and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, April 7.—The outlook was dubious this morning for the playing of the fourth game between the Yankees and Dodgers. A slight rain was falling with no prospects of clearing up. The Dodgers defeated the Orioles at Baltimore yesterday 3 to 2. The Yankees had morning and afternoon practice sessions.

New Orleans, April 7.—The Giants will try and make it a clean sweep in the final game this afternoon. They trimmed New Orleans yesterday 5 to 0, Mathewson going through the full nine innings and allowing only four hits.

Philadelphia, April 7.—The Athletics made it two straight when they defeated the Phillies yesterday. Home Run Baker lived up to his name when he smashed a circuit drive over the right field wall. The teams play again this afternoon. The series now stands Athletics 2, Phillies 1.

San Francisco, April 7.—Willie Ritchie today began active training for his championship bout with Tommy Murphy, April 17. The champion weighs 140 pounds but figures it will be easy to take off five pounds before the day of the fight. Murphy is going through a regular program of training.

San Francisco, April 7.—Jim Buckley, manager of Gunboat Smith has received an offer of $20,000 for his man to fight Georges Carpentier in England. Buckley has not yet accepted.

San Francisco, April 7.—Jack Kearns, manager of Billy Murphy today issued a challenge for any middleweight in the world. Kearns believes that only inexperience prevented Murphy from scoring a knockout over Jimmy Clabby Friday night.

Lansing, Mich., April 7.—Bill Wagner of Chicago won a ten round bout from Patsy Drouillard, Canadian lightweight champion here last night.

Indianapolis, April 7.—The Boston Red Sox lined up with the home team again today determined to break the hoodoo that has followed them this season. They lost yesterday 4 to 3.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion had an easy time defeating Gene Delmont in an 8 round fight last night.

New Orleans, April 7.—Young Sinner and Kid Herman fought a stiff ten round draw here last night.

—Spe. Id.—Gldht . . . . .

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 7.—The Naps will engage with the Reds again today weather permitting. Yesterday's 4 to 0 victory has put Birmingham's men in good spirits.

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—Many baseball fans today had their enthusiasm dampened somewhat when the legislature at Annapolis adjourned at midnight without acting on the bill making April 13, the opening of the Federal League season a legal holiday. The bill died in committee.

Dayton, Ohio, April 7.—The Cubs will play Dayton here this afternoon. Rain prevented yesterday's game between the Chicagoans and Springfield.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 7.—There seems to be a lot of weight to Willie Ritchie's remarks that the fighting public wants to see knockouts, and that it isn't overly keen about seeing fights where both men are on their feet at the finish.

"McFarland, Welsh and many of the other fighters, who claim to know what the public wants, say that the public enjoys a decision on points but even more than it does a knockout," declares Ritchie. "That isn't my idea. I believe that the public soon becomes bored and tired of seeing men fight who do not try for knockouts. The public wants something exciting and thrilling—with a real climax. And a knockout is the climax that the fans want. I try to give it to them whenever I can."

Over in England, 'tis said, the active golfers are considerably worried because of the invasion by the stellar American players who are going to compete with the Britons in May in the amateur tournament. The English figure with Dulmet, Travers, Harreshoff and perhaps two or three other Americans arrayed against them they aren't going to have any easy task keeping the title in their section of the world.

It is quite likely that the boxing game will be revived at Coney Island during the coming summer after years of inactivity because of the now dead Horton boxing law. It was at Coney that such memorable battles as the Fitzsimmons-Jeffries, Corbett-Jeffries, Sharkey-Jeffries, McCoy-Maher, Sharkey-Fitzsimmons and the Griffe-McAuliffe bouts were staged.

Here is a story that is being told about John McGraw, the Giant manager, to show just what a strategist he is.

Two years ago when the Giants, after a big lead earlier in the year, began to wobble in a horrible fashion, the club stacked up against the Pirates for a four game "crucial" series in the Stogie City. Claude Hendrix, in his first year as a big leaguer, was having great success as a Pirate pitcher. He worked in the first game against the Giants in that series and took their measure in easy fashion.

McGraw figured that the Pirates would send Hendrix back at the Giants again in the last game. And he knew that Hendrix, confident and cocky through the first easy victory, might duplicate the trick unless he (McGraw) could rob the said Mr. Hendrix of that confidence.

So after the first game, McGraw halted Hendrix as he was hustling to the club house.

"Nice game you pitched, my boy," said McGraw, in a sort of fatherly way. "Nice work. By the way, what are the Pirates paying you?" Hendrix told him. It wasn't a big salary, as salaries go these war-time days, but it was a pretty big salary for a youth just fresh from the bushes. And Hendrix was proud of that salary.

"How much?" asked McGraw again, in a teasing way.

Hendrix repeated the figure.

"Huh," grunted McGraw sarcastically. And then he walked away.

That "huh" sunk home. It changed Hendrix right there from a satisfied, confident, somewhat excited youth to one sans conceit, to one lacking his former confidence and made him somewhat dissatisfied.

And in the next game Hendrix worked against the Giants—wasn't himself. That "huh" still hurt and he couldn't get his mind off it, and the Giants grabbed the game that marked the turning point for them, lifted them out of the rut and sent them breezing along to the pennant.

How'd you like to be Eddie McGraw, or rather, how'd you like to have his earning capacity? Some short period back Eddie engaged Dave Smith, of Australia, in battle and knocked him out in the first round. McGraw got $6,500 for his share or just about $2,600 for the two minutes and thirty seconds the fight lasted.

Canadian hockey players rank the highest paid athletes in the world. In fact, some of them get more money per minute than do some of the highest salaried ball players and biggest purse grabbing pugilists.

Art Ross, of the Canadian Wanderers, and Fred Taylor, of the Vancouver, B. C., hockey team, get $10 for every minute they are on the ice, and draw down each season, as their pay for ten weeks of playing something between $10,000 and $15,000. They rarely average more than two games a week.

These salaries are top-notchers, but there are hundreds of Canadian hockey players who draw down salaries during the winter that range from $1,500 to $9,500.

CHAMPS SURE TO WIN VICTORY

Planning a new attack, Capt. Jack Fox, of the Utica basketball team, champions of the New York state league, was confident today of victory over the Camden eastern leaguers in the final battle of the two-game series to be played in Camden this evening.

The Utica five went down to defeat at the hands of Captain Adams' men Monday evening 39-34, their style of defensive play not jibing for an instant with the playing rules in vogue in Camden. The visitors were penalized 34 times to the locals' 13. Captain Adams was right on the job and tallied 21 points on the violations, while Sedran annexed six points via the charity route.

Frankie, rf.	6	0	12
Fox, rg.	1	0	2
Cone, lg.	2	0	4
Totals.	14	6	34

Fouls committed—Utica, 34; Camden, 13. Referee—Baetzel.

The Utica basketball management has arranged with the Camden club of the eastern league to appear in Utica on Thursday and Saturday evenings of next week, April 16 and 18.

The Camden team finished in the runner-up position in the recent play-off series in the eastern league and are recognized as being considerably faster than the Trenton five. Their victory over the Utes on Monday evening should make them all the more popular in Utica and undoubtedly a tremendous crowd will greet Jakey Adams and his speed merchants when they play in Utica.

Utes to Play in Wilkes-Barre.

The Utes are scheduled for two games in Wilkes-Barre this week, playing the Independents on Thursday evening and the professional five on Saturday night. These contests should be turned into victories, as the champs will probably not encounter officials with only one eye.

FIELD OF SPORTS

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism, and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 7.—The outlook was dubious this morning for the playing of the fourth game between the Yankees and Dodgers. A slight rain was falling with no prospects of clearing up. The Dodgers defeated the Orioles at Baltimore yesterday 3 to 2. The Yankees had morning and afternoon practice sessions.

New Orleans, April 7.—The Giants will try and make it a clean sweep in the final game this afternoon. They trimmed New Orleans yesterday 5 to 0, Mathewson going through the full nine innings and allowing only four hits.

Philadelphia, April 7.—The Athletics made it two straight when they defeated the Phillies yesterday. Home Run Baker lived up to his name when he smashed a circuit drive over the right field wall. The teams play again this afternoon. The series now stands Athletics 2, Phillies 1.

San Francisco, April 7.—Willie Ritchie today began active training for his championship bout with Tommy Murphy, April 17. The champion weighs 140 pounds but figures it will be easy to take off five pounds before the day of the fight. Murphy is going through a regular program of training.

San Francisco, April 7.—Jim Buckley, manager of Gunboat Smith has received an offer of $20,000 for his man to fight Georges Carpentier in England. Buckley has not yet accepted.

San Francisco, April 7.—Jack Kearns, manager of Billy Murphy today issued a challenge for any middleweight in the world. Kearns believes that only experience prevented Murphy from scoring a knockout over Jimmy Clabby Friday night.

Lansing, Mich., April 7.—Bill Wagner of Chicago won a ten round bout from Patsy Drouillard, Canadian lightweight champion here last night.

Washington, April 7.—Manager Griffiths today increased the daily hours of practice for the senators. "They are in worse condition today than in any previous time since I took over the management," said Griffith.

Indianapolis, April 7.—The Boston Red Sox lined up with the home team again today determined to break the hoodoo that has followed them this season. They lost yesterday 4 to 3.

Memphis, Tenn., April 7.—Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion had an easy time defeating Gene Delmont in a 10 round fight last night.

New Orleans, April 7.—Young Sinner and Kid Herman fought a stiff ten round draw here last night.

Cincinnati, Ohio, April 7.—The Naps will engage with the Reds again today weather permitting. Yesterday's 4 to 0 victory has put Birmingham's men in good spirits.

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—Many baseball fans today had their enthusiasm dampened somewhat when the legislature at Annapolis adjourned at midnight without acting on the bill making April 13, the opening of the Federal League season a legal holiday. The bill died in committee.

Dayton, Ohio, April 7.—The Cubs will play Dayton here this afternoon. Rain prevented yesterday's game between the Chicagoans and Springfield.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTS REVIEW

New York, April 7.—There seems to be a lot of weight to Willie Ritchie's remarks that the fighting public wants to see knockouts, and that it isn't overly keen about seeing fights where both men are on their feet at the finish.

"McFarland, Welsh and many of the other fighters, who claim to know what the public wants, say that the public enjoys a decision on points but even more than it does a knockout," declares Ritchie. "That isn't my idea. I believe that the public soon becomes bored and tired of seeing men fight who do not try for knockouts. The public wants something exciting and thrilling—with a real climax. And a knockout is the climax that the fans want. I try to give it to them whenever I can."

Over in England, 'tis said, the active golfers are considerably worried because of the invasion by the stellar American players who are going to compete with the Britons in May in the amateur tournament. The English figure that with Dulmet, Travers, Herreshoff and perhaps two or three other Americans arriving against them they aren't going to have any easy task keeping the title in their section of the world.

It is quite likely that the boxing game will be revived at Coney Island during the coming summer after years of inactivity because of the now dead Horton boxing law. It was at Coney that such memorable battles as the Fitzsimmons-Jeffries, Co-bett-Jeffries, Sharkey-Jeffries, McCoy-Maher, Sharkey-Fitzsimmons and the Griffo-McAuliffe bouts were staged.

Here is a story that is being told about John McGraw, the Giant manager, to show just what a strategist he is.

Two years ago when the Giants, after a big lead earlier in the year, began to wobble in a horrible fashion, the club stacked up against the Pirates for a four game "crucial" series in the Stogie City. Claude Hendrix, in his first year as a big leaguer, was having great success as a Pirate pitcher. He worked in the first game against the Giants in that series and took their measure in easy fashion.

McGraw figured that the Pirates would send Hendrix back at the Giants again in the last game. And he knew that Hendrix, confident and cocky through the first easy victory, might duplicate the trick unless he (McGraw) could rob the said Mr. Hendrix of that confidence.

So after the first game, McGraw halted Hendrix as he was hustling to the club house.

"Nice game you pitched, my boy," said McGraw, in a sort of fatherly way. "Nice work. By the way, what are the Pirates paying you?"

Hendrix told him. It wasn't any big salary, as salaries go these war-time days. Hendrix was a pretty good salary for a youth just fresh from the bushes. And Hendrix was proud of that salary.

"How much?" asked McGraw again, in seeming surprise.

Hendrix repeated the figure. "Hub," muttered McGraw sarcastically. And from he walked away. That "hub" sunk home. It changed Hendrix right there from a satisfied, confident, somewhat excited youth to one sans conceit, to one lacking his former confidence and made him somewhat dissatisfied.

And in the next game Hendrix worked against the Giants—wasn't himself. That "hub" still hurt and he couldn't get his mind off it, and the Giants grabbed the game that marked the turning point for them, lifted them out of the rut and sent them breezing along to the pennant.

How'd you like to be Eddie McGoorty—or rather, how'd you like to have his earning capacity? Some short period back Eddie engaged Dave Smith, of Australia, in battle and knocked him out in the first round. McGoorty got $5,500 for his share or just about $2,600 for the two minutes and thirty seconds the fight lasted.

Canadian hockey players rank the highest paid athletes in the world. In fact, some of them get more money per minute than do some of the highest salaried ball players and biggest purse grabbing pugilists.

Art Ross, of the Canadian Wanderers, and Fred Taylor, of the Vancouver, B. C., hockey team, get $10 for every minute they are on the ice, and draw down each season, as their pay for ten weeks of playing something between $10,000 and $15,000. They rarely average more than two games a week.

PRETTY FLOWER'S LOVE CURE

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Lew Kelsey of the Twin Star ranch rode his horse desperately over lonely trails that summer afternoon. There was a look of grim despair on his handsome face, and his bronzed hands clutched the bridle reins until the knuckles showed white.

"Turned down, turned down!" he muttered over and over again as Corney, the horse, flew madly through the dust of the trail. "And she laughed—laughed to beat the band—when I asked her! What do you know about that?"

The memory of Anita Rooney's scornful laugh still rang in his outraged ears. Why should Pat Rooney's red-headed girl spurn his offer of marriage in that rude way? Had she not accepted his attentions—his gifts? Had she not flirted with him, led him to believe that she loved him? And then when he summoned his courage to offer her the greatest honor in his gift—his big, warm, honest heart—she had laughed at him and refused!

So, while Lew Kelsey rode toward the west where the Wind river mountains piled a dim blue bulk against the pale sky, he gloomed sullenly over his unfortunate love affair, and he registered many vows to have done with women forever.

He pulled his horse to a standstill on the summit of a hill and looked away to the distant ranges, and he felt a longing to wipe out this old score of fate and start life anew without a woman in the world to turn the sweetness of living to pain and bitterness.

As he sat there like a bronze statue of despair, two riders came into view over the crest of the hill where he sat. Astride two wiry Indian ponies were a Shoshone Indian and his squaw; the woman was attired in a new dress, and she tinkled with silver ornaments, and her garments were gay with colored beads. The man wore a brand new suit of khaki, new moccasins, and his well-oiled black hair hung about his ears.

Sun Dog and his wife, Pretty Flower, were on their way back to the reservation in the Wind river district after a visit to their married daughter at Fort Steele.

"How!" grunted Sun Dog as he jogged past the cowpuncher.

"How?" returned Lew pleasantly enough.

"How?" smiled Pretty Flower, looking speculatively at the young man. "Me tell you fortune, huh?"

Pretty Flower was a thrifty woman, and her skill at fortune telling added many a silver coin to Sun Dog's wampum belt.

"Fortune!" repeated Lew disdainfully. "I'm afraid you haven't got any good fortune for me, Pretty Flower."

Pretty Flower giggled.

"Me find good fortune. Me find nice squaw," she promised.

"Squaw—ugh!" sneered Lew.

Pretty Flower looked sharply at him from her little black eyes. In spite of her dull looking countenance, she was unusually keen and discerning. Being a shrewd woman who dealt in fortunes, she was quick to recognize in Lew Kelsey all the symptoms of "a young man disappointed in love."

She knew Kelsey was not a drinking man, nor was he a gambler; therefore she attributed his downcast appearance to a rebuff by the girl he loved.

So she put her neatly dressed head on one side and looked at him archly.

"Me can cure love," she intimated.

Lew turned sharply.

"You can do what?" he roared.

"Me can cure love," she repeated.

"The dickens you can!" growled Lew, turning as red as the sunset.

"Me can cure you?"

"All right; go ahead; cure me," he ordered brazenly.

"Good!" grunted Pretty Flower approvingly.

Lew Kelsey slipped from the saddle and stood leaning against Corney's side. He held out his muscular, sun-burned hand to the Indian.

Pretty Flower jumped from her pony and stood beside him, holding his hand in her own red brown fingers.

"Hum! White man want cure for love? Listen! Find pretty girl. Lots pretty girls in Red Spider. Try hard to love new pretty girl. Try hard to forget old pretty girl. Bimeby some day old pretty girl gone from love and new pretty girl most got heart. Then stop there, white man, quick. Old love gone away. New love not quite come. Heart empty! White man safe!"

That, white man, is Pretty Flower's love cure." She dropped his hand and stepped back, surveying him with bright, watchful eyes.

"Well, of all the— Say, Pretty Flower, that's not a bad scheme of yours!" burst forth Lew excitedly. "That's some little cure. I believe I'll try it. Here!" He brought out a roll of bills and placed in the delighted squaw's palm a crisp and crackling five dollar note.

So Sun Dog and Pretty Flower went joyfully home to the reservation, while Lew Kelsey wheeled his horse about and returned to the Twin Star ranch. He reached there just in time for supper, and when the meal had been hurried through he joined his companions in making an elaborate toilet, for they were all going to attend the dance at the schoolhouse in Red Spider that evening.

All was merriment in the schoolhouse. The desks and seats had been piled outside, and on the platform were three fiddlers and a cracked piano. But the music was of the popular order, and amusements were few and far between in Red Spider, so that the dancers were not overparticular so long as the fiddlers kept in tune with the piano and their feet could beat time on the hard oaken floor.

Anita Rooney was there, the center of a laughing, joking crowd of men and girls. Lew Kelsey stood against the wall and felt a brief pang as his gaze included Anita's crisp red hair and a glimpse of her laughing face. Then he steadied himself and looked about for the girl who was to effect Pretty Flower's love cure.

He knew most of the girls present, but there were one or two who were strangers to him. One of them, a pretty, dark-eyed, black-haired girl, dressed in white, with a pale blue girdle about her slim waist, seemed more of a stranger than the others. She was with Dr. Blake's wife, and as Lew Kelsey was an intimate friend of the Blake's he felt no hesitation in approaching the doctor's wife and in obtaining an introduction to her guest from the east, Esther Gray.

Miss Esther Gray proved to be a most delightful acquaintance. She was as sweet and charming as she was pretty, and Lew felt that there wouldn't be the least difficulty in losing his heart to Esther. Only the trouble was he might want her to keep it. In that case, where was the good of Pretty Flower's love cure?

At any rate, he would be out of love with the scornful Anita!

As the evening wore on Lew found himself quite forgetting Miss Rooney and her ruddy charms. On the other hand, Anita sensed that she was losing an admirer. It was all very well to laugh at Lew Kelsey's pretensions to her hand and heart; still she had been proud of the attentions of the handsome young cowpuncher, only—only—well, Anita Rooney was ambitious, and she had set her heart on marrying well. No mere cowpuncher would do. It must be the ranch owner himself for Pat Rooney's daughter. It was one thing to refuse Lew Kelsey and still have him dangling at her heels a disconsolate lover. It was quite another matter to have him apparently forgetting all about her and paying devoted attention to that black-eyed witch from the east.

So Anita sent for Lew and told him reproachfully that she had saved three dances for him, "as usual," and that he had not come to claim them. And Lew, who recognized Anita's wiles, grinned good-naturedly and asked her to dance. Even while his strong arm guided her through the mazes of the waltz, which is still popular in Red Spider district, Anita resentfully felt that his thoughts as well as his eyes were following the graceful figure of Esther Gray.

At the end of another week Pretty Flower's love cure was working. Lew had almost forgotten his love for Anita Rooney, while his growing love for Esther Gray was an ever present joy.

One morning while he was herding cattle on the western ranges the thought of the projected love cure smote his memory.

"Ah, I couldn't—I couldn't keep myself from loving her!" he said, with a tender smile.

"I'll ask her to ride out to Sunset point with me," he decided. "There I'll ask her, and if she'll have me, why, I'll buy that little ranch of Nickerson's, and we'll—well, call it Paradise, for it can't be anything else with Esther there!"

It was just at sunset when Esther Gray and Lew Kelsey rode slowly up the slope and rested their horses on the summit of the point. Far to the west the fiery clouds flickered and flamed along the peaks of the distant mountains.

Silhouetted against the western sky, the dark forms of the riders told a story to Pretty Flower and her husband, who were gathering herbs on the hillside.

The horses were standing close together, and Lew's arm was about Esther's slender waist, and her dark head was on his shoulder.

Pretty Flower looked at Sun Dog and smiled.

"It was the love cure," she whispered softly.

Sun Dog grunted approval, and together, hand in hand, the two Indians stole away, for they, too, had been young and had known romance.

In the eighteenth century the whole safety and order of Glasgow, Scotland, were intrusted to the unpaid and reluctant burglars. Every citizen who was between the years of eighteen and sixty, and paid a yearly rent amounting to $15, had to take his turn at guarding the city. After that hour the city was without a police."

On learning the terms of the proposed address the regent, who knew that Coke valued his position as commoner above everything, declared, "If Coke enters my presence I shall knight him." ## USE OF STARTERS IN BUTTER MAKING

"The chief value of starters, which are almost indispensable to makers of large amounts of butter and cheese," says W. L. Clevenger of the Ohio College of Agriculture, "lies in the fact that in these cultures are found a reliable source of souring bacteria, which, when properly used, insure a more uniform quality of butter and cheese. A starter is simply sour milk which contains a large number of desirable souring bacteria in the growing stage. It will have a mild, acid odor, and when added to pasteurized cream at the right time will insure a uniform, excellently flavored butter."

Trouble is often experienced on the farm in getting cream to churn properly and butter from it that will be

Much more interest is being taken by dairymen in possessing themselves of better breeding stock. No doubt this is because of the advanced registry of the breeds. These records are of very great benefit in this respect. A cow with a record of production for milk and butter can show almost exactly just what profit she will produce through the milk pail for one year. Crown Princess Maxie De Kol II, here shown, is a pure bred Holstein and is owned by G. W. Rising, Fayette, O. Her records as a senior four-year-old are for seven days 36.77 pounds of butter and for thirty days 142.27 pounds of butter.

uniform in flavor and quality from season to season, says Orange Judd Farmer. This is due to an excess of undesirable bacteria, which produce bad flavors and prevent the proper souring. This condition can be overcome in many cases by the use of natural starters, which simply means the adding of a culture which is known to contain the proper bacteria for souring to the cream in which cultures of unknown bacteria have been growing. A natural starter can be made by putting clean milk fresh from the cow in a sterilized jar and letting it stand at 70 degrees until it thickens, which is usually from twenty-four to thirty-six hours. This permits the lactic acid bacteria, which are naturally more numerous in the milk, to develop under the most favorable conditions. This culture should be added to the cream twelve hours previous to churning in quantity varying with the size of the churning and mixed thoroughly.

SAVING THE LAMBS.

Guard the New Born Youngsters Against Cramp and Cold.

If your ewes were in good order in the fall they should still carry very good flesh, writes a West Virginia farmer in the National Stockman. They should now be turned on a reserved sod handy to an open front shed, with plenty of hay in the racks. Sprinkle some salt on the hay occasionally. Should have a fresh cow on hand. With her you can save lambs that would otherwise die. Watch your ewes and, if not giving enough milk for lambs, feed them twice a day warm milk just from the cow. If you find one that has become chilled by cold wind, rain or neglect of the ewe, get him near the fire, give his legs and body a good rubbing with a woolen cloth, heat the cloth, wrap him up and lay him before the fire for a few minutes. Soon he will shake himself and give the hunger signal; then feed him, either by way of the ewe or the cow. Sometimes a lamb will apparently lose the use of his legs and refuse to stand and his head will draw to one side. This is a sign of cramps in the stomach. Give oil physic, dose same as for child.

I have handled sheep and lambs for a number of years, and it was a long time before I got acquainted with the cramping part. For several years I considered him the same as dead and let him go, but now I dope them and save nine cases out of ten. This may seem some trouble, but it is only the work of a few minutes and saves $4 or $5.

The Lambless Ewe.

If a ewe loses her lamb she should be required to mother a lamb of another ewe that has twins or is unable to supply her lamb with enough milk. Many ewes can be induced to adopt a lamb if time and patience is exercised. Remove the skin from her own dead lamb and place it on the lamb to be adopted by her. Since she knows her lamb by the odor and not by sight this method will be effective in many cases. The old skin may be removed in a day or two.

Rye For Pigs.

It may not be generally known, but ground rye forms a very good substitute for corn. Pigs do not seem to relish it as much nor is it considered quite as good, pound for pound, but for general fattening purposes it can take the place of corn to good advantage. If used in the following ration it makes an excellent feed: Eight parts of corn, three parts of ground rye and one part of tankage.

American Peculiarity.
The Germans believe that if your right hand itches you will get money; if your left hand itches you will spend much. Americans are the only people in the world who have both hands itching all the time.

PRETTY FLOWER'S LOVE CURE

Lew Kelsey of the Twin Star ranch rode his horse desperately over lonely trails that summer afternoon. There was a look of grim despair on his handsome face, and his bronzed hands clutched the bridle reins until the knuckles showed white.

"Turned down, turned down," he muttered over and over again as Corney, the horse, flew madly through the dust of the trail. "And she laughed—laughed to beat the band—when I asked her! What do you know about that?"

The memory of Anita Rooney's scornful laugh still rang in his outraged ears. Why should Pat Rooney's red-headed girl spurn his offer of marriage in that rude way? Had she not accepted his attentions—his gifts? Had she not flirted with him, led him to believe that she loved him? And then when he summoned his courage to offer her the greatest honor in his gift—his big, warm, honest heart—she had laughed at him and refused!

So, while Lew Kelsey rode toward the west where the Wind river mountains piled a dim blue bulk against the pale sky, he gloomed sullenly over his unfortunate love affair, and he registered many vows to have done with women forever.

He pulled his horse to a standstill on the summit of a hill and looked away to the distant ranges, and he felt a longing to wipe out this old score of fate and start life anew without a woman in the world to turn the sweetness of living to pain and bitterness.

As he sat there like a bronze statue of despair, two riders came into view over the crest of the hill where he sat. Astride two wiry Indian ponies were a Shoshone Indian and his squaw; the woman was attired in a new dress, and she tinkled with silver ornaments, and her garments were gay with colored beads. The man wore a brand new suit of khaki, new moccasins, and his well-oiled black hair hung about his ears.

Sun Dog and his wife, Pretty Flower, were on their way back to the reservation in the Wind river district after a visit to their married daughter at Fort Steele.

"How?" grunted Sun Dog as he jogged past the cowpuncher.

"How?" returned Lew pleasantly enough.

"How?" smiled Pretty Flower, looking speculatively at the young man. "Me tell you fortune, huh?"

Pretty Flower was a thrifty woman, and her skill at fortune telling added many a silver coin to Sun Dog's wampum belt.

"Fortune?" repeated Lew disdainfully. "I'm afraid you haven't got any good fortune for me, Pretty Flower."

Pretty Flower giggled. "Me find good fortune. Me find nice squaw," she promised.

"Squaw—ugh!" sneered Lew. Pretty Flower looked sharply at him from her little black eyes. In spite of her dull looking countenance, she was unusually keen and discerning. Being a shrewd woman who dealt in fortunes, she was quick to recognize in Lew Kelsey all the symptoms of "a young man disappointed in love."

She knew Kelsey was not a drinking man, nor was he a gambler; therefore she attributed his downcast appearance to a rebuff by the girl he loved.

So she put her neatly dressed head on one side and looked at him archly. "Me can cure love," she intimated.

Lew turned sharply. "You can do what?" he roared. "Me can cure love," she repeated.

"The dickens you can!" growled Lew, turning as red as the sunset. "Me can cure you!"

"All right, go ahead; cure me," he ordered brazenly.

"Good?" grunted Pretty Flower approvingly.

Lew Kelsey slipped from the saddle and stood leaning against Corney's side. He held out his muscular, sun-burned hand to the Indian.

Pretty Flower jumped from her pony and stood beside him, holding his hand in her own red brown fingers.

"Hum! White man want cure for love? Listen! Find pretty girl. Lots pretty girls in Red Spider. Try hard to love new pretty girl. Try hard to forget old pretty girl. Bimeby some day old pretty girl gone from love and new pretty girl most got heart. Then stop there, white man, quick. Old love gone away. New love not quite come. Heart empty! White man safe!

That, white man, is Pretty Flower's love cure." She dropped his hand and stepped back, surveying him with bright, watchful eyes.

"Well, of all the— Say, Pretty Flower, that's not a bad scheme of yours!" burst forth Lew excitedly. "That's some little cure. I believe I'll try it. Here!" He brought out a roll of bills and placed in the delighted squaw's palm a crisp and crackling five dollar note.

So Sun Dog and Pretty Flower went joyfully home to the reservation, while Lew Kelsey wheeled his horse about and returned to the Twin Star ranch. He reached there just in time for supper, and when the meal had been hurried through he joined his companions in making an elaborate toilet, for they were all going to attend the dance at the schoolhouse in Red Spider that evening.

All was merriment in the schoolhouse. The desks and seats had been piled outside, and on the platform were three fiddlers and a cracked piano. But the music was of the popular order, and amusements were few and far between in Red Spider, so that the dancers were not overparticular so long as the fiddlers kept in tune with the piano and their feet could beat time on the hard oaken floor.

Anita Rooney was there, the center of a laughing, joking crowd of men and girls. Lew Kelsey stood against the wall and felt a brief pang as his gaze included Anita's crisp red hair and a glimpse of her laughing face. Then he steadied himself and looked about for the girl who was to effect Pretty Flower's love cure.

He knew most of the girls present, but there were one or two who were strangers to him. One of them, a pretty, dark-eyed, black-haired girl, dressed in white, with a pale blue girdle about her slim waist, seemed more of a stranger than the others. She was with Dr. Blake's wife, and as Lew Kelsey was an intimate friend of the Blakes he felt no hesitation in approaching the doctor's wife and in obtaining an introduction to her guest from the east, Esther Gray.

Miss Esther Gray proved to be a most delightful acquaintance. She was as sweet and charming as she was pretty, and Lew felt that there wouldn't be the least difficulty in losing his heart to Esther. Only the trouble was he might want her to keep it. In that case, where was the good of Pretty Flower's love cure?

At any rate, he would be out of love with the scornful Anita!

As the evening wore on Lew found himself quite forgetting Miss Rooney and her ruddy charms. On the other hand, Anita sensed that she was losing an admirer. It was all very well to laugh at Lew Kelsey's pretensions to her hand and heart; still she had been proud of the attentions of the handsome young cowpuncher, only—well, Anita Rooney was ambitious, and she had set her heart on marrying well. No mere cowpuncher would do. It must be the ranch owner himself for Pat Rooney's daughter. It was one thing to refuse Lew Kelsey and still have him dangling at her heels, a disconsolate lover. It was quite another matter to have him apparently forgetting all about her and paying devoted attention to that black-eyed witch from the east.

So Anita sent for Lew and told him reproachfully that she had saved three dances for him, "as usual," and that he had not come to claim them. And Lew, who recognized Anita's wiles, grinned good-naturedly and asked her to dance. Even while his strong arm guided her through the mazes of the waltz, which is still popular in Red Spider district, Anita resentfully felt that his thoughts as well as his eyes were following the graceful figure of Esther Gray.

At the end of another week Pretty Flower's love cure was working. Lew had almost forgotten his love for Anita Rooney, while his growing love for Esther Gray was an ever present joy.

One morning while he was herding cattle on the western ranges the thought of the projected love cure smote his memory.

Pretty Flower looked at Sun Dog and smiled.

"It was the love cure," she whispered softly.

Sun Dog grunted approval, and together, hand in hand, the two Indians stole away, for they, too, had been young and had known romance.

Pigs do not seem to relish it as much nor is it considered quite as good, pound for pound, but for general fattening purposes it can take the place of corn to good advantage. If used in the following ration it makes an excellent feed: Eight parts of corn, three parts of ground rye and one part of tankage.

BRICK APPROACHES TO NEW VIADUCT

The approaches to the Washington avenue viaduct or overhead bridge over the O. & W. and U. & D. railroad crossings are to be built of brick instead of macadam, as called for in the original specifications. The change in material was due to the fact that some time ago Mayor Canfield and City Engineer Codwise called the attention of the public service commission to the fact that some of the loads of stone drawn over the roads at that point weighed as much as seventeen tons and they did not believe that macadam would stand up as well as brick.

Mayor Canfield received word on Saturday from the public service commission that the necessary change in the specifications changing the material from macadam to brick had been made, and that both railroads had made no objection to the change.

The viaduct is practically completed, although no work has been done on it this past winter. It is likely that the work will shortly be started and the viaduct completed so that it will be thrown open to traffic this summer.

REPORTS MADE AT WOMEN'S COUNCIL

At the closing session of the Presidents' Council of the Federated Clubs of New York state, held at the Fair Street Reformed Church on Monday afternoon, some exceedingly interesting additional reports of standing committees were read, the ticket for the coming state election was discussed and quite a sum was contributed toward the national endowment fund. The following names should be added to the list of out-of-town women who registered at the sessions: Miss Mary Wood, chairman of legislative committee, New York; Miss Florence H. Davis, and Mrs. George Darrance, Middletown.

Mrs. Griffith of Rockville Center, chairman of the reciprocity bureau, told of the work of the bureau as a means of disseminating knowledge and entertainment through the mutual exchange of papers, speakers, etc. She asked that all club programs be sent to her and announced that only women papers be sent to clubs and club members, but also speakers who would charge $5, $10 or more an evening would be furnished to talk on specified subjects.

That the privileges and benefits of affiliation with the state federation are being more and more fully appreciated by the club women was shown by the report of Mrs. Yawger, chairman of the membership committee. She stated that there were 276 clubs in the state federation, with a total enrollment of 276,000 members. Eight new clubs have been organized since November and at present only seven out of the counties of this big state are not represented. Mrs. Yawger also spoke about the coming biennial convention to be held in June at Chicago, in the great Auditorium. This convention will last ten days and it was announced that the complete itinerary would very soon be sent out to the members of the state federation, giving complete data relative thereto.

When the resolution presented by Miss Mary L. Wood asking that the federation take some action relative to the making of women's dress more refined, less extreme and more decent, considerable discussion arose. The motion to support this resolution was lost on the ground that while the federation did heartily approve of modesty and less extreme forms of dress, any resolutions relative thereto could effect nothing and might seem only ridiculous.

During the discussion of the ticket for the coming election, several names were offered as suggestions to the nominating committee, but a complete slate was not made out.

One of the most interesting and clever speakers of the day was Miss Mary Wood, a lawyer of New York city, and chairman of the legislative committee, who told of her experiences during a month's stay at Albany. Miss Wood said that at a board meeting in the winter it had been voted that she should go to Albany for one month and learn what she could of the legislative operations there. She had been and had hung around on the outskirts and had sat within the inner circles and had learned many things. One of the things she learned was that our legislators were underneath just like our school teachers. We send men of the highest integrity and intelligence to Albany to make and pass our laws, but we pay them much less than we do the men who administer those laws. Miss Wood claimed not only that it was unjust but that it might prove a temptation to the men sent, and said that from a mere feminine way of looking at the matter she did see men there who might be said to have fallen under such temptation. The speaker said that no matter how staunch an anti-sectarian she might have been when she went up to Albany, what she saw and learned there would have fully converted her, for she was sure that the votes of the good women of the state were needed at Albany. Miss Wood then went on to tell of the making of laws, showing that many bills introduced never had even a hearing, great numbers of them never being read by their sponsors. Then many of the bills passed while Miss Wood was there, the governor had not yet signed, for as she said, "the governor is a nice man, but very busy now, and there is no woman on the state board of charities yet." While it was quite possible to get women appointed to such offices as that of police women, as associate judges in the juvenile courts, etc., where they are so sadly needed, provided the women would do the work without asking for remuneration, it was quite another story to get them in such positions with a salary. It was found to be a little easier to secure just legislation for children than for women, yet, Miss Wood stated, that starting with the garden of Eden, where all the men sneakers start, there one found absolute equality for both Adam and Eve went over the garden wall together and remained together.

The speaker then took particular pains to make it clear to the women that grave danger of making a serious mistake is found in the promiscuous and partially informed way of endorsing bills as is so often done by women's clubs and even the Federation itself. It was far, far better to let a good law go unendorsed than to make the mistake of supporting in any way a pernicious bill, and Miss Wood urged that the Federation each winter send their chairman of legislation to Albany, for just the sort of experience and education which she had gained in behalf of the Federation this last winter. Miss Wood was given a specially hearty round of applause, and Mrs. Shuler urged that when any of the clubs or federated bodies received appeals to endorse any legislative measures they at once send the same to Miss Wood, that they might be properly and technically investigated before any action was taken thereon.

Mrs. Dwyer, chairman of the anti-tuberculosis committee, next spoke and gave a very informing account of the campaign as being carried on in Yonkers where a municipal tuberculosis hospital is in operation.

The woman's auxiliary of the hospital found it hard to get hold of the necessary money to carry on their share of the work, but did admirably with the sale of Christmas seals. The State Charities Aid Association had been exceedingly anxious to send a paid worker to conduct the seal sale for them, but the women decided to do their own work and as a result they secured $1,700 with only $24.60 expenses. Their main care was that of the families where the bread-winner was the victim of the white plague. Through the investigation and aid of the paid charity worker and the tuberculosis nurse, in consultation with a committee from the auxiliary, the families were helped without there being any interference on the part of laymen. A vast deal, Mrs. Dwyer said, had already been accomplished by preventive measures in the fight against tuberculosis.

It was announced that the collection taken up for the endowment fund amounted to $23.65 with an addition of a $5 contribution, making the total amount contributed at the meeting to be $28.65. Up to the present time the $30 additional sum pledged by the Kingston Federation had received the following sums to its account: Lowell Club, $2.50; The Coterie, $2; Atharhac-ton Club, $2; Public Health Committee, $5; lecture returns, $3; making a total of $14.50.

In closing the presidents' council, Mrs. Shuler said that the value of the council could only be estimated by concrete results. If the women in attendance simply sat through the sessions, then went home and forgot all about what they had heard, no good would result. But if they would take whatever of inspiration they had received at the sessions and gave it out to others that it might develop into active work and a renewed personal responsibility toward life as we find it today. The effects of such gatherings might be infinitely far-reaching. It was a matter of very complimentary comment on the part of all the women present that Mrs. Shuler was an exceptionally fine presiding officer; remarkably well informed on all the multitudinous activities of the state organization; absolutely impartial in her rulings; gracious and inspiring with confidence and enthusiasm in those who were to speak, especially for the first time, and wise in her counselings.

Before the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Yawger moved a rising and hearty vote of thanks and appreciation to the women of the Kingston Federation for their gracious and cordial hospitality, which motion was carried. The visiting women were taken to their out-going trains by the members of the Monday Club.

HINKLEY OUT OF JAIL.

Released on Own Recognizance—County Court Adjourns Sine Die.

Darwin Hinkley, who was under indictment on a charge of forgery in the second degree, was released on his recognizance in county court on Monday afternoon by consent of District Attorney Cunningham. Darwin was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of forging the name of Miss Grace Merritt to a check for $15, which it was alleged he had cashed at Kinkade's grocery store on North Front street last summer. Frank W. Brooks appeared for Darwin.

Charles Turner, who was indicted for carrying concealed weapons was arraigned and said he had no money to hire a lawyer and the court appointed Newton Fessenden to defend him and sent the case over the term. When court convened with a full panel of trial jurors District Attorney Cunningham said that there were no cases for trial. He called attention to the fact that when court had first convened it had adjourned to Monday afternoon as it was thought by that time there would be some criminal cases ready for trial. Unfortunately the sheriff's office had been unable to locate those who were wanted on indictment and so no cases were ready.

Judge Jenkins discharged the panel of jurors and adjourned court sine die.

REPORTS MADE AT WOMEN'S COUNCIL

At the closing session of the Presidents' Council of the Federated Clubs of New York state, held at the Fair Street Reformed Church on Monday afternoon, some exceedingly interesting additional reports of standing committees were read, the ticket for the coming state election was discussed and quite a sum was contributed toward the national endowment fund. The following names should be added to the list of out-of-town women who registered at the sessions: Miss Mary Wood, chairman of legislative committee, New York; Miss Florence H. Davrig, and Mrs. George Darrance, Middletown.

Mrs. Griffith of Rockville Center, chairman of the reciprocity bureau, told of the work of the bureau as a means of disseminating knowledge and entertainment through the mutual exchange of papers, speakers, etc. She asked that all club programs be sent to her and announced that only would papers be sent to clubs and club members, but also speakers who would charge $5, $10 or more an evening would be furnished to talk on specified subjects. That the privileges and benefits of affiliation with the state federation are being more and more fully appreciated by the club women was shown by the report of Mrs. Yawger, chairman of the membership committee. She stated that there were 19 clubs in the state federation, with a total enrollment of 276. Eight new clubs have joined since November and at present seven out of the counties of this big state are not represented. Mrs. Yawger also spoke about the coming biennial convention to be held in June at Chicago, in the great Auditorium. This convention will last ten days and it was announced that the complete itinerary would very soon be sent out to the members of the state federation, giving complete data relative thereto.

When the resolution presented by Miss Mary I. Wood asking that the federation take some action relative to the making of women's dress more refined, less extreme and more decent, considerable discussion arose. The motion to support this resolution was lost on the ground that while the federation did heartily approve of modesty and less extreme forms of dress, any resolutions relative thereto could effect nothing and might seem only ridiculous.

During the discussion of the ticket for the coming election, several names were offered as suggestions to the nominating committee, but a complete slate was not made out. One of the most interesting and clever speakers of the day was Miss Mary Wood, a lawyer of New York city, and chairman of the legislative committee, who told of her experiences during a month's stay at Albany. Miss Wood said that at a board meeting in the winter it had been voted that she should go to Albany for one month and learn what she could of the legislative operations there. She had been and had hung around on the outskirts and had learned many things. One of the things she learned was that our legislators were underpaid just like our school teachers. We send men of the highest integrity and intelligence to Albany to make and pass our laws, but we pay them much less than we do the men who administer those laws. Miss Wood claimed not only that it was unjust but that it might prove a temptation to the men sent, and said that from a mere feminine way of looking at the matter she did see men there who might be said to have fallen under such temptation. The speaker said that no matter how staunch an anti-suffragist she might have been when she went up to Albany, what she saw and learned there would have fully converted her, for she was sure that the votes of the good women of the state were needed at Albany. Miss Wood then went on to tell of the making of laws, showing that many bills introduced never had even a hearing, great numbers of them never being read by their sponsors. Then many of the bills passed while Miss Wood was there, the governor had not yet signed, for as she said, "the governor is a nice man, but very busy now, and there is no woman on the state board of charities yet." While it was quite possible to get women appointed to such offices as that of police women, as associate judges in the juvenile courts, etc., where they are so sadly needed, provided the women would do the work without asking for remuneration, it was quite another story to get them in such positions with a salary. It was found to be a little easier to secure just legislation for children than for women, yet, Miss Wood stated, that starting with the garden of Eden where all the men speakers start, there one found absolute equality for both Adam and Eve went over the garden wall together and remained together.

The speaker then took particular pains to make it clear to the women that grave danger of making a serious mistake is found in the promiscuous and partially informed way of endorsing bills as is so often done by women's clubs and even the Federation itself. It was far, far better to let a good law go unendorsed than to make the mistake of supporting in any way a pernicious bill, and Miss Wood urged that the Federation, each winter send their chairman of legislature to Albany, for just the sort of experience and education which she had gained in behalf of the Federation this last winter. Miss Wood was given a specially hearty round of applause, and Mrs. Shuler urged that when any of the clubs or federated bodies received appeals to endorse any legislative measures they at once send the same to Miss Wood, that they might be properly and technically investigated before any action was taken thereon.

Mrs. Dwyer, chairman of the anti-tuberculosis committee, next spoke and gave a very informing account of the campaign as being carried on in Yonkers where a municipal tuberculosis hospital is in operation.

The woman's auxiliary of the hospital found it hard to get hold of the necessary money to carry on their share of the work, but did admirably with the sale of Christmas seals. The State Charities Aid Association had been exceedingly anxious to send a paid worker to conduct the seal sale for them, but the women decided to do their own work and as a result they secured $1,700 with only $24.60 expenses. Their main care was that of the families where the bread-winner was the victim of the white plague. Through the investigation and aid of the paid charity worker and the tuberculosis committee from the auxiliary, the families were helped without there being any interference on the part of laymen. A vast deal, Mrs. Dwyer said, had already been accomplished by preventive measures in the fight against tuberculosis.

It was announced that the collection taken up for the endowment fund amounted to $23.65 with an addition of a $5 contribution, making the total amount contributed at the meeting to be $28.65. Up to the present time the $30 additional sum pledged by the Kingston Federation had received the following sums to its account: Lowell Club, $2.50; The Coterie, $2; Atharhacton Club, $2; Public Health Committee, $5; lecture returns, $3; making a total of $14.50.

In closing the presidents' council, Mrs. Shuler said that the value of the council could only be estimated by concrete results. If the women in attendance simply sat through the sessions, then went home and forgot all about what they had heard, no good would result. But if they would take whatever of inspiration they had received at the sessions and gave it out to others that it might develop into active work and a renewed personal responsibility toward life as we find it today, the effects of such gatherings might be infinitely far-reaching. Before the meeting adjourned, Mrs. Yawger moved a rising and hearty vote of thanks and appreciation to the women of the Kingston Federation for their gracious and cordial hospitality, which motion was carried. The visiting women were taken to their out-going train by the members of the Monday Club.

SAXON

The price of $395 includes Top, Windshield, Lamps and Tools.

The Saxon is Here

We have just received our first shipment of Saxon Cars—the wonderful $395 automobile which is making such remarkable sales records everywhere.

Hundreds of people in this city have been waiting for an opportunity to see the Saxon—the first real automobile with standard motor car features, selling at less than $500.

Now is your opportunity.

The Saxon meets the demand for a low priced car that is both good and good looking. It is a big car for the price, with 36-inch wheelbase; standard tread; 4-cylinder, 15 horsepower. Continental motor of special Saxon design; left drive with control. Not a cyclecar.

We invite you to come to our salesroom, see the Saxon car and arrange for a demonstration.

Next Sunday is Easter

Learn a lesson from the blind man on the corner. "Tap-tap-tap" goes his stick. He never takes a step until he's tried the ground. Buy your Easter clothes that way! "Make the rounds." Appraise the clothes that some stores praise heaven-high! Dissect them, bisect them and cross-sect them! Comparison is "justice without mercy." Claims are "mercy without justice." In Easter Suits and Top Coats, in Shirts and Cravats, in Handkerchiefs and Hats, in every belonging of dress, we are fleetest both to survey and purvey fashions for the well-dressed Kingstonian.

SAVARD & DOMSER

HIGHEST SALARIED MANAGER IN BASEBALL

Manager John J. McGraw of New York Giants.

Manager John J. McGraw is the highest salaried man in baseball. Last Year McGraw received $30,000 as salary from the New York club and will get the same amount this year and for three more, for the new contract he signed last winter at that yearly salary has four more years to run. McGraw's income from baseball last year was $83,500.

McGraw was born in Truxton, N. Y., April 7, 1873. He played his first professional engagement with the Olean, N. Y., team in 1890. After two seasons in the minor leagues he entered the National league as a member of the Baltimore team in 1892, and remained with that team until the end of the season of 1899. In 1900 he played with the St. Louis Cardinals. The following year the American league placed a team in Baltimore, with McGraw as manager. John remained in Baltimore until he signed as manager of the Giants in 1902. On July 19, 1914, he will celebrate his twelfth year as pilot of the National league champions. During his career as a player McGraw was a crack third baseman, and since taking up the managerial end of the game he has developed a number of the greatest stars in baseball.

SPEED NOW A GREAT FACTOR

Modernized Baseball Uses Faster Play Than Was the Case in Earlier Days of the Game.

It is in the base-stealing department that the biggest difference between the old-time ball players and the present generation is found. A comparison between the figures of 20 years ago and now shows a remarkable falling off. In 1886 in the National league three men stole more than 50 bases. Harry Stovey led the American association with 96 steals. In 1887 Stovey broke all records stealing 143 bases. Arlie Latham was a close second with 142. In the National league Johnny Ward led with 110 steals, the late Jimmy Fogarty being second with 102. In 1888 Stovey made a record that will hardly be touched. He stole 156 bases.

Clyde Milan.

Five other American association players stole more than 100 bases. Dummy Hoy led the National league with 82 steals.

Billy Hamilton came to the front as the American association's best base runner in 1889. He put 117 steals to his credit, leading Stovey by two. Fogarty did the best work in the National league, stealing 99 bases.

Since the advent of Ty Cobb, Clyde Milan and Eddie Collins, base running has had a revival, but the three American league stars are the only players who show anything like the old-timers.

WORK OF BASEBALL SCOUTS

Interesting Feature of Wonderful Development of Game as Commercial and Sporting Institution.

Few people realize the amount of hard work which is put in on behalf of big league baseball clubs for the purpose of locating and developing new talent. Every year the big clubs have baseball scouts scouring the country, some of whose journeyings take them a mileage sufficient to encircle the globe every year. They travel from Maine to California and back again, oftentimes, the slightest report of a good thing being followed up with the utmost possible speed.

These scouts generally are old time players and they have a very keen appreciation of what is necessary to make a big league player; and yet, at that, they are frequently fooled. Indeed, the getting of a phenomenon is largely a matter of luck after all. Some of the keenest scouts in the country have turned down some of the most wonderful players, while scouts of mediocre ability have turned up world renowned baseball artists.

The system appears to be necessary. Baseball clubs keep scouts going on the same theory that nations maintain and equip a standing army. They do it because the other fellow does and so scouting has come to be as much a part of baseball equipment as anything else. Whether it pays or not is another question. It certainly is an interesting feature of the wonderful development of baseball as a commercial as well as a sporting institution.

Cobb Lacked Two Votes.
Ty Cobb lacked but two votes of being the unanimous choice of 11 scribes for the position of center fielder on the All-American baseball team being drafted on paper by the Boston Post. The Georgian got nine votes out of the 11, but two dissenting voters who selected Tris Speaker prevented Cobb from sharing honors with Walter Johnson and Eddie Collins, who were unanimous choices, both received the entire 11 votes.

Waivers on Doc Crandall.
Although Doc Crandall has jumped to the Feds, McGraw has gone through the formality of asking waivers on him under the new rule that the offer must be to all class AA and then class A clubs. Nashville is out in a bid for the pitcher, believing that he may repent when he sees how the Feds pan out.

Claims World's Championship.
President Gilmore declares he will claim the world's baseball championship for the Federals if the winners of the American and National leagues refuse to meet his pennant winner.

Explains Baseball's Popularity.
Nothing equals baseball as a popular sport. Baseball stimulates the mind and invigorates, instead of exhausts, the body. It can be played in any field, at almost no cost. Expense is the handicap which keeps tennis and golf out of the running as great popular sports. A baseball game may be played in two hours—an advantage which will ever make it more popular than cricket as an international game.

The Capable Woman.
The capable woman will always have a baby to nurse, and the baby will be her husband. — James Stephens.

Historic Beard.
The longest beard recorded in history was that of John Mayo, painter to the Emperor Charles V. Though he was a tall man it is said that his beard was of such a length that he could tread upon it. He was very vain of it and usually fastened it with a ribbon to his buttonhole, and sometimes he would untie it by command of the emperor, who took great delight in seeing the wind blow it in the faces of his courtiers.

Young America.
"Mother, I wish father'd hurry up and get rich. I hate havin' to keep on lyin' to the other boys about him." — Collier's Weekly.

The Distinction.
The discussion in one of the newspapers on whether one should use the word "woman" or "lady" and how one is to tell the difference has been enlivened by this story: Two charwomen were discussing somebody else. "Yuss," said one, "she's a lady she is. When she gits drunk she can take a cab 'qme."

HEARD FROM HARDENBERGH.

Wild Excitement in Election Board Office Over Telephone Call.

The air of calm contentment that brooded over the office of the board of elections in the court house this morning was suddenly shattered when the telephone bell rang and a voice harsh and impatient said, "Is this the board of elections, Kingston?"

"Yes, sir," replied the one who answered the phone in a soothing voice as one who was quieting a child.

"Well," continued the voice at the other end of the line, "this is the town clerk of the town of Hardenbergh. You have made a blunder and sent us the ballots of the town of Denning," and the telephone receiver clicked back into place with a snap.

"By gracious," spoken in a loud tone of voice broke the stillness of the board of election's office and then, where peace and quietness had breathed, was suddenly stirred into unquieted activity. Telephone book in one hand and receiver held in the other the clerk in the office got busy and routed out the clerks who had assisted in sending out the ballots.

"They arrived posthaste and soon sounds of angry voices drifted under the cracks of the closed door.

"Get the town clerk in the phone," said one voice.

"I did not mix them up," said another voice.

And in the babel that ensued it was impossible to distinguish who was talking.

After the discussion had been underway for nearly an hour "long distance" was able to locate the town clerk of the town of Hardenbergh.

The conversation that ensued sounded somewhat like this:

"This is the town clerk?"

"Yes."

"When did you get those ballots of Denning?"

"Get what?"

"Those ballots of Denning."

"What are you talking about? We got only our own ballots."

"A-a-a-h-h-h. This is meant to represent a lot of great relief."

At this point it is better to drop the curtain.

The question that still remains unanswered is "Who played the joke on the board of elections?"

Very Quiet Election.

Indications seemed to point this morning to the fact that a very light vote would be cast on the question of whether delegates shall be elected this fall to a convention for the purpose of framing a new constitution. In nearly all of the wards from 25 to 50 votes had been cast by 10 o'clock.

In the first ward 95 had been cast up to noon, and it was thought that before the polls closed at least 150 votes would be cast. A nasty drizzle of rain fell throughout the day.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 7.—Transactions were light at the opening of the stock exchange today and dealings in the usually active issues were small and unimportant. Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Erie, Baltimore and Ohio, Anaconda Copper, United States Steel, Common and Amalgamated Copper all began 1/4 up. Great Northern Ore reflected the influence of its annual report, beginning 1/2 lower. Within half an hour however, it had recovered most of its loss. Goodrich Common gained 1/4 within the first fifteen minutes, losing part of this gain a little later. Central Leather declined 1/4, then recovered. Studebaker Company lost half and fractional declines were scored by Utah Copper, eading and International Harvester. Southern Pacific gained 3/4 and a similar upturn was made by Northern Pacific. The curb was irregular. Americans in London were listless.

Noon.—There was so little change in prices of many of the leading issues during the late forenoon that business might be said to have come to a complete standstill. The copper stocks showed a firm tone. American Tobacco advanced 3/4; United States Steel common moved up 1/4; New York Central and Mexican Petroleum, 3/4; Reading, Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper held firm. Call money loaning at 1 1/4 per cent.

2:30 p. m.—The activity which followed the publication of the government crop report was of short duration and most of the buying on the upturn was professional. In the last hour prices held around the noon level. Amalgamated Copper sold at 77 1/4 for a fractional gain. American Tobacco sold at 23 1/4 for a net gain of 2 points from Monday's close. Steel held around 63 1/4 for a gain of 1/4 from its opening. Great Northern Ore sold at 35 1/4 for a point from its opening.

The market closed steady. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds irregular.

MR. GORMAN'S LECTURE.

Address on "The Irish in America" Highly Appreciated.

The regular semi-monthly lecture in St. Mary's Church, Ellenville, N. Y., was given Sunday evening, April 5, by Vincent Gorman of Kingston. The subject of the lecture was "The Irish in America." Beginning with pre-revolutionary days, he told of the great struggle these hardy sons of the Emerald Isle had made for political and religious liberty and the important part they had taken in shaping and preserving our beloved country. As Mr. Cunningham said, in thanking the speaker, the address showed an immense amount of research and care in preparation and was very instructive and pleasing to his hearers. To add to the pleasure of the evening, J. B. Reilly, who was in excellent voice for the occasion, gave some very fine selections.

Fire at Rifton.

The house of Benjamin B. Willets at Rifton was destroyed by fire early this morning. The fire was probably of incendiary origin as it was vacant. Mrs. Willet and children being on the ocean enroute home from a trip to Europe. The fire started in one corner on the outside. The house was formerly occupied by Joseph G. Jagger. $2,500 insurance was carried on the property with the DeWitt agency of Kingston and the Barnhart agency at High Falls. The house and contents were valued at between three and four thousand dollars.

Martin's First Trip.

The steamer M. Martin of the Central Hudson line made her first trip up the river from Newburgh this morning, discharging a big cargo of freight at Rondout. Captain Van Wart, formerly of the Cornell tug George W. Pratt, is in command of the vessel. The Jacob H. Tremper, sister boat of the Martin, will come up the river on Wednesday, resuming navigation between Newburgh and Troy for the season.

Classes of Ulster.

The Classes of Ulster will meet in the new Reformed Church at Shokan Tuesday morning and afternoon, April 8. The following president, Rev. A. J. Sebring of Catskill, will preach a sermon. The report on the state of religion will be given by Rev. John Mayskens of Port Ewen. The condition of the vacant churches will be reported by the Rev. G. W. Gulick of Mr. Marlon. There will be an elder delegate from each church.

Senator Palmer in Albany.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, April 7.—Senator Palmer came to Albany today to urge Governor Glynn to sign his bill appropriating $10,000 for the purpose of sending between 300 and 400 veterans to Andersonville on April 26 to visit the Confederate prison there. Senator Palmer conferred with Governor Glynn and Comptroller Sohmer upon the project.

An Easter Breakfast.

Appointed District Attorney.

Claude B. Mayham, a son of Judge Stephen Mayham, has been appointed district attorney of Schoharie county to succeed the late Alonzo B. Coons by Governor Glynn.

Improved on Old Superstition.

The first time pigs cross your threshold make them jump over your pants' belt, or your wife's garter, or the maid's apron; then they will come home regularly. A plan now in use among up-to-date American farmers is to keep the pigs in regular pens and feed them twice a day. It is regarded as a scheme more popular with the wife and the maid. The other way is recorded as being a German one.

HEARD FROM HARDENBERGH.

Wild Excitement in Election Board Office Over Telephone Call.

The air of calm contentment that brooded over the office of the board of elections in the court house this morning was suddenly shattered when the telephone bell rang and a voice harsh and impatient said, "Is this the board of elections, Kingston?"

"Yes, sir," replied the one who answered the phone in a soothing voice as one who was quieting a child.

"Well," continued the voice at the other end of the line, "this is the town clerk of the town of Hardenbergh. You have made a blunder and sent us the ballots of the town of Denning," and the telephone receiver clicked back into place with a snap.

"By gracious," spoken in a loud tone of voice broke the stillness of the board of election's office and then, where peace and quietness had breathed, was suddenly stirred into unwonted activity. Telephone book in one hand and receiver held in the other the clerk in the office got busy and routed out the clerks who had assisted in sending out the ballots.

"They arrived posthaste and soon sounds of angry voices drifted under the cracks of the closed door.

"Get the town clerk in the phone," said one voice.

"I did not mix them up," said another voice.

And in the babel that ensued it was impossible to distinguish who was talking.

After the discussion had been underway for nearly an hour "long distance" was able to locate the town clerk of the town of Hardenbergh.

The conversation that ensued sounded somewhat like this:

"This the town clerk?"

"Yes."

"When did you get those ballots of Denning?"

"Get what?"

"Those ballots of Denning."

"What are you talking about? We got only our own ballots."

"A-a-a-h-h-h." This is meant to represent a tone of great relief.

At this point it is better to drop the curtain.

The question that still remains unanswered is "Who played the joke on the board of elections?"

Yes, kind reader, it was only a joke. The ballots were not mixed up, much to the relief of the clerks who sent them out.

Holy Week at St. James's.

Holy week will be observed at St. James's Methodist Episcopal Church by three special services.

This evening at 7:45 o'clock a stereoscopic lecture on the Life of Christ will be given in the Sunday school room. The pictures will depict scenes in the life of Christ, especially the closing scenes of His life, and will consist principally of reproductions of the famous paintings of the old masters. The hymns will be shown on the screen for the guidance of the congregation. Admission will be free.

On Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock there will be an address by the pastor, followed by holy communion. Selections will be given by the church quartet.

On Good Friday, service will be held at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, when an address will be given by the pastor on "Seven Words from the Cross." Special music will be rendered.

Moving to Broadway.

J. Davis Manufacturing Company are moving from the Leventhal building on Wall street to the Hutton building, 662 Broadway, where they will continue the manufacture of garments for sale at wholesale and retail.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 7.—Transactions were light at the opening of the stock exchange today and dealings in the usually active issues were small and unimportant. Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Erie, Baltimore and Ohio, Anaconda Copper, United States Steel, Common and Amalgamated Copper all began 1/4 up. Great Northern Ore reflected the influence of its annual report, beginning 1/2 lower. Within half an hour however, it had recovered most of its loss. Goodrich Common gained 1/2 within the first fifteen minutes, losing part of this gain a little later. Central Leather declined 1/4, then recovered. Studebaker Company lost half and fractional declines were scored by Utah Copper, Eading and International Harvester. Southern Pacific gained 1/4 and a similar upturn was made by Northern Pacific. The curb was irregular. Americans in London were listless.

Noon.—There was so little change in prices of many of the leading issues during the late forenoon that business might be said to have come to a complete standstill. The copper stocks showed a firm tone. American Tobacco advanced 1/4. United States Steel common moved up 1/4. New York Central and Mexican Petroleum, 1/4. Reading, Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper held firm. Call money loaning at 1 1/2 per cent.

2:30 p. m.—The activity which followed the publication of the government crop report was of short duration and most of the buying on the upturn was professional. In the last hour prices held around the noon level. Amalgamated Copper sold at 77 1/4 for a fractional gain. American Tobacco sold at 237 1/4 for a net gain of 2 points from Monday's close. Steel held around 63 1/4 for a gain of 1/4 from its opening. Great Northern Ore sold at 35 1/4 for a point from its opening.

The market closed steady. Governments unchanged; other bonds irregular.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, is arranging for its annual free lecture.

The Rev. and Mrs. N. B. Remick of Pine Hill are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Irving Goddard at No. 17 John street.

The Women's Work Society of the Wurts Street Baptist Church will hold a regular monthly meeting on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chapel.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Presbyterian Church will be held Thursday evening after prayer meeting. The meeting is called for the purpose of transacting important business and all members are urged to be present.

MR. GORMAN'S LECTURE.

Address on "The Irish in America" Highly Appreciated.

The regular semi-monthly lecture in St. Mary's Church, Ellenville, N. Y., was given Sunday evening, April 5, by Vincent Gorman of Kingston. The subject of the lecture was "The Irish in America." Beginning with pre-revolutionary days, he told of the great struggle these hardy sons of the Emerald Isle had made for political and religious liberty and the important part they had taken in shaping and preserving our beloved country. As Mr. Cunningham said, in thanking the speaker, the address showed an immense amount of research and care in preparation and was very instructive and pleasing to his hearers. To add to the pleasure of the evening J. B. Reilly, who was in excellent voice for the occasion, gave some very fine selections.

Fire at Rifton.

The house of Benjamin B. Willets at Rifton was destroyed by fire early this morning. The fire was probably of incendiary origin as it was vacant. Mrs. Willet and children being on the ocean enroute home from a trip to Europe. The fire started in one corner on the outside. The house was formerly occupied by Joseph G. Jager. $2,500 insurance was carried on the property with the DeWitt agency of Kingston and the Barnhart agency at High Falls. The house and contents were valued at between three and four thousand dollars.

Martin's First Trip.

The steamer M. Martin of the Central Hudson line made her first trip up the river from Newburgh this morning, discharging a big cargo of freight at Rondout. Captain Van Wart, formerly of the Cornell tug George W. Pratt, is in command of the vessel. The Jacob H. Tromper, sister boat of the Martin, will come up the river on Wednesday, resuming navigation between Newburgh and Troy for the season.

Classis of Ulster.

The Classis of Ulster will meet in the new Reformed Church at Shokan Tuesday morning, and afternoon, April 14. The retiring president, Rev. A. J. Sebring of Katonah, will preach a sermon. The report on the state of religion will be given by Rev. John Muskens of Port Ewen. The condition of the vacant churches will be reported by the Rev. G. W. Gulick of Mr. Marton. There will be an elder delegate from each church.

Senator Palmer in Albany.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Albany, April 7.—Senator Palmer came to Albany today to urge Governor Glynn to sign his bill appropriating $10,000 for the purpose of sending between 300 and 400 veterans to Andersonville on April 26 to visit the Confederate prison there. Senator Palmer conferred with Governor Glynn and Comptroller Sobmer upon the project.

An Easter Breakfast.

Appointed District Attorney.

Claude B. Mayham, a son of Judge Stephen Mayham, has been appointed district attorney of Schoharie county to succeed the late Alonzo B. Coons by Governor Glynn.

Improved on Old Superstition. The first time pigs cross your threshold make them jump over your pants' belt, or your wife's garter, or the maid's apron; then they will come home regularly. A plan new in use among up-to-date American farmers is to keep the pigs in regular pens and feed them twice a day. It is regarded as a scheme more popular with the wife and the maid. The other way is recorded as being a German one.

UNDERWOOD DEFEATS HOBSON BY 25,000

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Birmingham, Ala., April 7.—Oscar Underwood won the senatorial election over Representative Edmund P. Hobson in yesterday's election, the primary by approximately 25,000 majority. Official figures are being as the count is very slow and to the lengthy ballot. However, enough returns have been tabulated to indicate that Hobson carried only three of the sixty-seven counties of the state.

Both Hobson and Underwood will retire from the house March 4th next. Underwood later entering the United States senate and Hobson retiring to private life.

Frank S. White was nominated for Ray Rushton, as the short term senator to succeed the late Joseph F. Johnston.

Musical and Recital.

Miss Gertrude M. Griffin, reader and impersonator; Miss Marion Jones, soprano, and Harry P. Jones, accompanist, will give a musical and recital at the chapel of the Wurts Street Baptist Church on Monday evening, April 13. Miss Jones is a stranger to a Kingston audience but comes highly recommended; has a charming voice and is an equally successful reader of both serious and humorous compositions. Miss Eames, Mr. Dodge are well known here very popular. All that are assured a rare treat.

Van Dyke Masterpiece Stolen.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Bussels, April 7.—The famous painting of the Christ child on the lap of the Virgin Mary by Van Dyck was stolen today from the automobile of M. Bernus, who was driving it from this city to Antwerp. The canvas was valued at $50,000. It is the first big art theft in northern Europe since the "Mona Lisa" was stolen from the Louvre in Paris and the police were urged to take every precaution to prevent the picture from being carried from the country.

Maundy Thursday at St. John's.

Thursday of this week is known as Maundy Thursday, the title originating from Christ's world-wide and final mandate at the time of the institution of the Lord's Supper on that day. "This do in remembrance of Me." The holy communion will, therefore be celebrated at St. John's church on Thursday morning at 10.30. And every day but Good Friday there will be service at the church at 9:30 a. m.

HOME RULE BILL WILL BECOME LAW

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 7.—After a fight of twenty-eight years home rule for Ireland is now practically assured. Before the first of July, supporters of the government claimed today, the home rule bill will be on the statute books and immediately afterward the first steps will be taken to establish an Irish parliament in Dublin.

Although the government's majority in the division on the second reading of the home rule bill was cut to 80, members of the cabinet do not regard this as indicative of hostility on the part of the people at large against the measure.

The vote taken on an amendment for the rejection of the bill resulted: Nos 356, Ayes 276.

The bill now goes to the house of lords, but their power to kill the legislation is dead as a result of the veto bill. They can reject it, but the measure will come again into the hands of the cabinet where the rejection of the Peers will be rejected. Then the measure becomes a law by Royal assent.

It now remains for the government and representatives of the anti-home rulers of Ulster province to reach an agreement. There is every likelihood that this will soon be an accomplished fact. The conciliatory attitude adopted within the past few days by Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, and some of his chief followers indicates that the orangemen will accept the original proposals of the government which give the protestants in the Ulster counties the right of a referendum to say whether or not they shall be excluded from the workings of the home rule bill for six years. The sea of politics still bubbles hotly, but the talk of civil war has died out.

John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, who has devoted his life to the fight for home rule, received hundreds of messages of congratulation today from his followers. Similar telegrams were sent to Premier Asquith, who is campaigning in east Fife in Scotland.

It is believed that the return to parliament of the premier will see the beginning of tangible plans for a federal form of government for the British Isles, a proposal which, upon the surface, seems favorable to a majority of the Ulster Unionists.

Debate on the home rule bill in the house of peers will be the signal for another attack upon the government and will probably see the renewal of A. Bonar Law's demands that the home rule bill be submitted to a referendum of the people before it is finally placed upon the statute books. Such an appeal, according to Irish and Liberal leaders and even many Unionists will be futile and vain.

Hummel Recital.

Musical lovers of this city will be glad to learn that Fred Hummel will on Tuesday, April 28, give a violin recital at the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street. Mr. Hummel will be assisted by Miss Bertha Kinzel, who is possessed of a rarely beautiful soprano voice and by Charles Gilbert Spross, the well known pianist of New York. Among the numbers which Mr. Hummel will play will be the first movement of Beethoven's Fifth Sonata for violin and piano, known as the "Sonata to Spring"; the "Andante" to the Mendelssohn violin concerto; a Polish Brilliant by Wieniawski; and two groups of shorter but charming selections. Tickets for this delightful recital are now for sale.

New Dock Launched.

The new section dock of the C. Hiltbrant Company, which was built during the past winter to take the place of the one sold to parties in Brooklyn, was successfully launched at the yard in South Rondout this morning. The occasion was a festive one for the people of South Rondout and many men, women and children were present to witness the novel sight. Three tugs were present to assist in case there was any accident but the dock slipped into the water in fine shape and the tugs then took her in tow. The women and children were presented with boxes of candy by the company and the men were the recipients of cigars in honor of the event. It was one of the most successful launchings held at the yard.

Few Sign Carpenters' Scale.

A few of the boss carpenters have signed the agreement with the carpenters and joiners' local for an increase of five cents an hour from 40 to 45 cents, a Saturday half holiday and an eight hour day. Not all the bosses have signed yet but the journeymen are confident that the remainder of the employers will come to the terms asked before long. Members of the local union are extremely reticent in their discussion of the matter but admit that they have won a few of the employers over to their side of the argument.

Ready For Bricklayers.

The concreting on the foundation for the new high school has progressed so rapidly that the with the arrival of brick the bricklayers will be put at work. Daily the automobile trucks of George T. Kelly, the contractor, arrive here with material for the job. Mr. Kelly is building the high school in Poughkeepsie and some of his plant is being transported to Kingston for use here. The blasting for the foundation is well under way under the direction of Henry McNamee of Ed-dyville.

"The Telephone Girl."

A stereoscopic lecture on "The Telephone Girl" will be given at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Wednesday evening by R. D. Clearwater, local manager of the New York Telephone Company. The lecture will be very interesting and instructive and will be illustrated with a number of beautiful views. Admission free.

FATTENING CATTLE.

Grain Ration Should Be Light For the First Few Weeks.

To my mind the first and most important step in fattening cattle is to have an abundant supply of good feed, writes H. W. Swope in the American Agriculturist. Throughout many sections silage is regarded as an absolute necessity. However, there are perhaps some places where roughage can be more cheaply supplied, but even in such localities something succulent in the form of silage is very essential for best results. In my particular case we use hay and corn silage. Both are palatable and are fed separately for the sake of variety.

A bunch of fattening cattle getting a good feed night and morning of cut straw and silage mixed ten hours before feeding and all the clover hay they will clean up nicely at noon will be well off for roughage. I do not know of any other ration on which cattle can be kept so full all the time without putting them off their feed. Every experienced feeder will agree with me that the secret of success in beef making lies largely in knowing how to keep the cattle full every day. The ration should be palatable at all times. The grain may be fed at night and morning mixed with cut straw and silage. During the early part of the season I give very little grain. The allowance is gradually increased each week after the first few weeks. Considerable quantities of grain are wasted by overfeeding in the early part of the feeding season. It is a very easy matter to completely ruin the digestion of an animal by feeding too much grain for any considerable length of time.

A mixture of grain I find always gives me better results than any single variety fed alone. When cattle are put on a heavy ration of grain they make rapid gains for a time, perhaps for two months, and then they seem to come to a standstill and make little or no improvement. Therefore the point to be determined is not the amount of grain we can get an animal to consume, but the amount it is able to digest and assimilate properly.

I do not know of any grain that will put so good a finish on cattle as peas. I refer to Canadian field peas. A little pea meal fed during the last few weeks of the feeding season makes the cattle more firm, and they weigh a little better, but this must be fed in small quantities to give the desired result.

HANDLING SILAGE.

No More Than Is Needed For One Day Should Be Loosened.

The quality of the silage may be materially bettered by using care in taking it out. Don't put the fork down five or six inches deep, as though you were pitching manure, but use a fork with tines close together and skim off the top, only loosening what you need for the day's feeding.

Keep the surface level and perhaps a little lower near the outer walls. Silage cannot be handled as carelessly as ordinary roughage. The cows in eating will sometimes throw some out of the mangers, and some may be scattered in feeding unless you are very careful. If this is allowed to remain there it will soon cause a bad odor. The man that uses the broom freely along the feed alleys is the one that has a sweet smelling stable, a condition worth while, for milk takes up a foreign odor with surprising rapidity, and unless everything is sweet smelling the milk will tell it, and eventually the customer will find it out and take his trade elsewhere.

Good and Poor Cows.
To show that there is a vast difference in the profit producing capacity of dairy animals the records of three different classes of cows found in the Wisconsin university herd is interesting. One lot averaged 426.9 pounds of butter fat per year, another 301.8 pounds, and a third 195.8 pounds. The return over the feed cost for the best producers was $70.64 per year per cow, the second $42.18, and the last $19.01. Although each group required about the same care and feed, the total production and profit varied widely. To become skillful and successful in the care, feeding, selecting and breeding of dairy cows means to be successful in the business of dairying.—Kansas Farmer.

A Bull From Ulster.

The Ulsterman is not incapable of a bull, says the British Weekly. It was an Ulster marquis who endeared himself to his tenantry by the memorable bull uttered in his speech at an agricultural dinner: "I wish my farmers would use iron plows, because they last forever and will afterward sell as old iron." It was an Ulsterman who at a funeral observed the awkward work of an unaccustomed hand and exclaimed as he seized a shovel: "I wasn't seven years courting a sexton's daughter without learning to sod a grave."

About the Limit in Hunting.
A Dublin gentleman was spending his vacation with some friends in the west of Ireland. As he was being driven to his destination he noticed a bog that promised good shooting, and asked his jockey if there were any snipe in it. "Snipe, is it, sir? Did ye say snipe? Shure, if ye went into that bog widout a gun they'd aye!"

Depends on Circumstances.

UNDERWOOD DEFEATS HOBSON BY 25,000

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Birmingham, Ala., April 7.—Oscar Underwood won the senatorial election over Representative Hobson yesterday's primary by approximately 25,000 majority. Official figures are not yet in, but the count is very close to the lengthy ballot. However, the returns have been tabulated and indicate that Hobson carried only 10 of the sixty-seven counties of Alabama.

Musical and Recital.

Gertrude M. Griffin, reader of the poem, Miss Marion, soprano, and Harry P. P., accompanist, will give a musical and recital at the chapel of Wurts Street Baptist Church on Monday evening, April 13. Miss Griffin is a stranger to a Kingston audience but comes highly recommended; has a charming voice and is an equally successful reader of both serious and humorous compositions. Miss Eames, Mr. Dodge are well known here very popular. All that are assured a rare treat.

Van Dyke Masterpiece Stolen.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Bussels, April 7.—The famous painting of the Christ child on the Virgin Mary by Van Dyke was stolen today from the collection of Mr. Bussels, who was taking it from this city to Antwerp. The canvas was valued at $50,000. It is the first big art theft in the north since the "Mona Lisa" was stolen from the Louvre in 1911 and the police were urged to every precaution to prevent the picture from being carried from the country.

Maundy Thursday at St. John's.

Thursday of this week is known as Maundy Thursday, the title originating from Christ's world-wide and final mandate at the time of the institution of the Lord's Supper on that day. "This do in remembrance of Me." The holy communion will, therefore be celebrated at St. John's church on Thursday morning at 10:30. And every day but Good Friday there will be service at the church at 9:30 a. m.

Entertainment at South Rondout.

The Junior C. E. Society of the South Rondout M. E. Church will hold an entertainment Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the church. There will be solos by Miss Elvora Mitchell, readings by Miss Saulsbury and organ solos by Professor Longyear. The Juniors will also take part. Ice cream for sale after the entertainment.

Freight Wreck in North Yard.

Five cars on a freight train left the track in the north yard on Sunday night when a brake beam broke and caused the five following cars to become derailed. All cars lost their trucks and were toppled over. The middle was blocked for some time until the wrecker arrived and straightened out traffic.

HOME RULE BILL WILL BECOME LAW

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
London, April 7.—After a fight of twenty-eight years home rule for Ireland is now practically assured. Before the first of July, supporters of the government claimed today, the home rule bill will be on the statute books and immediately afterward the first steps will be taken to establish an Irish parliament in Dublin.

Although the government's majority in the division on the second reading of the home rule bill was cut to 80, members of the cabinet do not regard this as indicative of hostility on the part of the people at large against the measure.

The vote taken on an amendment for the rejection of the bill resulted: Nos 356, Ayes 276.

The bill now goes to the house of lords, but their power to kill the legislation is dead as a result of the veto bill. They can reject it, but the measure will come again into the hands of the cabinet where the rejection of the Peers will be rejected. Then the measure becomes a law by Royal Assent.

It now remains for the government and representatives of the anti-home rule of Ulster province to reach an agreement. There is every likelihood that this will soon be an accomplished fact. The conciliatory attitude adopted within the past few days by Sir Edward Carson, leader of the Ulster Unionists, and some of his chief followers indicates that the orangemen will accept the original proposals of the government which give the protestants in the Ulster counties the right of a referendum to say whether or not they shall be excluded from the workings of the home rule bill for six years. The sea of politics still bubbles hotly, but the talk of civil war has died out.

John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, who has devoted his life to the fight for home rule, received hundreds of messages of congratulation today from his followers. Similar telegrams were sent to Premier Asquith, who is campaigning in east Fife in Scotland.

It is believed that the return to parliament of the premier will see the beginning of tangible plans for a federal form of government for the British Isles, a proposal which, upon the surface, seems favorable to a majority of the Ulster Unionists.

Debate on the home rule bill in the house of peers will be the signal for another attack upon the government and will probably see the renewal of A. Bonar Law's demands that the home rule bill be submitted to a referendum of the people before it is finally placed upon the statute books. Such an appeal, according to Irish and Liberal leaders and even many Unionists will be futile and vain.

Hummel Recital.

Music lovers of this city will be glad to learn that Ford Hummel will on Tuesday, April 28, give a violin recital at the First Presbyterian Church on Elmendorf street. Mr. Hummel will be assisted by Miss Bertha Kinzel, who is possessed of a rarely beautiful soprano voice and by Charles Gilbert Spross, the young pianist of New York. Among the numbers which Mr. Hummel will play will be the first movement of Beethoven's Fifth Sonata for violin and piano, known as the "Sonata to Spring"; the "Andante" to the Mendelssohn violin concerto; a Polish Brilliant by Wieniawski, and two groups of shorter but charming selections. Tickets for this delightful recital are now for sale.

New Dock Launched.

The new section dock of the C. Hiltbrand Company, which was built during the past winter to take the place of the one sold to parties in Brooklyn, was successfully launched at the yard in South Rondout this morning. The occasion was a festive one for the people of South Rondout and many men, women and children were present to witness the novel sight. Three tugs were present to assist in case there was any accident but the dock slipped into the water in fine shape and the tugs then took her to tow. The women and children were presented with boxes of candy by the company and the men were the recipients of cigars in honor of the event. It was one of the most successful launchings held at the yard.

Few Sign Carpenters' Scale.

A few of the boss carpenters have signed the agreement with the carpenters and joiners' local for an increase of five cents an hour from 40 to 45 cents, a Saturday half holiday and an eight hour day. Not all the bosses have signed yet but the journeymen are confident that the remainder of the employers will come to the terms asked before long. Members of the local union are extremely reticent in their discussion of the matter but admit that they have won a few of the employers over to their side of the argument.

Ready for Bricklayers.

The concreting on the foundation for the new high school has progressed so rapidly that the with the arrival of brick the bricklayers will be put at work. Daily the automobile trucks of George T. Kelly, the contractor, arrive here with material for the job. Mr. Kelly is building the high school in Poughkeepsie and some of his plant is being transported to Kingston for use here. The blasting for the foundation is well under way under the direction of Henry McNamee of Ed-dyville.

"The Telephone Girl."

A stereopticon lecture on "The Telephone Girl" will be given at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Wednesday evening by R. D. Clearwater, local manager of the New York Telephone Company. The lecture will be very interesting and instructive and will be illustrated with a number of beautiful views. Admission free.

FATTENING CATTLE.

Grain Ration Should Be Light For the First Few Weeks.

To my mind the first and most important step in fattening cattle is to have an abundant supply of good feed, writes H. W. Swope in the American Agriculturist. Throughout many sections silage is regarded as an absolute necessity. However, there are perhaps some places where roughage can be more cheaply supplied, but even in such localities something succulent in the form of silage is very essential for best results. In my particular case we use hay and corn silage. Both are palatable and are fed separately for the sake of variety.

A bunch of fattening cattle getting a good feed night and morning of cut straw and silage mixed ten hours before feeding and all the clover hay they will clean up nicely at noon will be well off for roughage. I do not know of any other ration on which cattle can be kept so full all the time without putting them off their feed. Every experienced feeder will agree with me that the secret of success in beef making lies largely in knowing how to keep the cattle full every day. The ration should be palatable at all times. The grain may be fed at night and morning mixed with cut straw and silage. During the early part of the season I give very little grain. The allowance is gradually increased each week after the first few weeks. Considerable quantities of grain are wasted by overfeeding in the early part of the feeding season. It is a very easy matter to completely ruin the digestion of an animal by feeding too much grain for any considerable length of time.

A mixture of grain and silage always gives me better results than any single variety fed alone. When cattle are put on a heavy ration of grain they make rapid gains for a time, perhaps for two months, and then they seem to come to a standstill and make little or no improvement. Therefore the point to be determined is not the amount of grain we can get an animal to consume, but the amount it is able to digest and assimilate properly.

I do not know of any grain that will put so good a finish on cattle as peas. I refer to Canadian field peas. A little pea meal fed during the last few weeks of the feeding season makes the cattle more firm, and they weigh a little better, but this must be fed in small quantities to give the desired result.

HANDLING SILAGE.

No More Than Is Needed For One Day Should Be Loosened.

The quality of the silage may be materially bettered by using care in taking it out. Don't put the fork down five or six inches deep, as though you were pitching manure, but use a fork with tines close together and skim off the top, only loosening what you need for the day's feeding.

Keep the surface level and perhaps a little lower near the outer walls. Silage cannot be handled as carelessly as ordinary roughage. The cows in eating will sometimes throw some out of the mangers, and some may be scattered in feeding unless you are very careful. If this is allowed to remain there it will soon cause a bad odor. The man that uses the broom freely along the feed alleys is the one that has a sweet smelling stable, a condition worth while, for milk takes up a foreign odor with surprising rapidity, and unless everything is sweet smelling the milk will tell it, and eventually the customer will find it out and take his trade elsewhere.

PUBLIC HEARING ON CHARTER BILL

Mayor Canfield has given notice that a public hearing on the charter amendment bill will be held at the city hall on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The official notice of the meeting will be found in the advertising columns of The Freeman. The most important changes in the charter were printed in The Freeman some time ago, and are as follows:

Fiscal year starts January 1, of each year.

School taxes payable in August, and general taxes in February.

Appointment by mayor of board of public works, consisting of four members, to have jurisdiction over the streets, sewers, parks, etc.

Board of gas and electricity, consisting of three members, to be appointed by mayor, to have jurisdiction over street lighting, etc.

Appointment of secretary to mayor at a salary not to exceed $1,200, whose duties are to assist various city departments as designated by mayor.

The abolishing of the job of deputy city clerk, held by Thomas Kennedy.

Consolidation of city court and recorder's court and the appointment of a city judge by the mayor and the appointment by city judge of a clerk who shall be a stenographer and of a person to act as city marshal and probation officer.

It provides for the election of an alderman-at-large who is voted for throughout the city and who presides at all meetings of the common council. Salary $300 per year.

Aldermen to be paid $5 for each meeting they attend starting January 1, 1916.

Runaway at New Salem.

Jerry Relyea and Harold Elsworth of Port Ewen, while trying out a new horse which they were thinking of buying, had a bad accident while going down a hill near New Salem. Some part of the harness gave way and the horse got frightened and started to run, throwing Elsworth from the wagon and landing him on a fence. He was unconscious. A doctor was called and moved him to his home on South Broadway. Elsworth had a bad bruise on one arm, but from a rough examination the doctor said there were no bones broken, but thought he was hurt quite badly internally. Relyea escaped uninjured, although quite well shaken up.

No Unionist Candidate.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 7.—Official announcement was made today that the Unionists will not present any candidate to oppose Premier Asquith at the election in Fife tomorrow. This decision will permit the premier to return to parliament a week sooner than would have been possible had he met opposition.

Until further notice steamer Odell will leave Rondout Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 11 a. m. Returning leaves New York Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 4 p. m. CENTRAL HUDSON STEAMBOAT COMPANY.—Advertisement.

ALMS BOARD MEETING.

Routine Business Peacefully Transacted by the Commissioners.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of alms commissioners held at the city hall on Monday evening was very calm and peaceful and only routine business was transacted. The board gave no indication as to what steps it intends to take to remove Thomas H. Edmonston, the present superintendent of the alms house. At the March meeting Mr. Edmonston's position was extended two more months by President Waterbury of the board as there was no eligible list from which to select his successor, and his term expires April 30. It is understood that the municipal civil service commission has not forwarded an eligible list to the board although it held an examination to make up such a list on Thursday evening, March 26. At that time seven would-be superintendents took the examination. They were Edwin Burhans, Oscar Addis, Fred Shalloff, Harry Dederick, Michael Reis, Ira Coutant and Charles Britt.

At the March meeting considerable time was taken up with a discussion of the case of Mollie Goldwasser the 12 year old daughter of Max Goldwasser of South Wilbur avenue. The girl is in a deaf and dumb institution and the institution is endeavoring to make the local alms board pay a bill of $325 for the support of the child during 1913, when its parents moved to Kingston from New York city. The Kings county authorities believe that the Kingston authorities should pay for the support of the child during the time that her parents had lived in Kingston. The matter was left with Superintendent Edmonston to take up with Dr. Hill, superintendent of the state alien poor, and get his opinion on the subject.

At the meeting Monday evening Superintendent Edmonston read a letter received from Dr. Hill in which he stated that the local alms board was not responsible for the support of the child as it was a charge of the Kings county authorities before Mr. Goldwasser moved to Kingston and the child still remained a charge on the Kings county authorities.

By-Laws Amended.

The amendments to the by-laws offered at a previous meeting by Commissioner Marquardt and which were laid over to the April meeting were again read and on motion adopted.

Requisition for supplies at the alms house was read and referred to the purchasing committee with power.

Lighting Expenses Too High.

Commissioner Stock called attention to the fact that the lighting bills at the alms house were rather high and he thought they could be reduced by the installing of tungsten lamps. It was brought out that from six to seven lamps remain lighted all night at the alms house.

On motion the matter was referred to the president of the board with power. Just how many of the new lamps will be installed will be at the discretion of the president.

Commissioner Osterhout reported that the house committee had renewed several insurance policies that fell due April 10.

Secretary's Report.

The report of Secretary Edmonston for March was as follows:

Balance in city treasury, March 2 ..... $16,727.29
Deposited with city treasurer, March 31..... 3.50

Amount of bills audited this date ..... 2,063.84

Balance on hand ..... $14,666.95
Number of persons in alms house 50 of which 29 were males and 21 females.

Coal Given to Poor.

A report of the amount of coal given out in each ward of the city from November 1, 1913, to March 1, 1914 amounted to $1,166.22 divided among the wards as follows:

First Ward ..... $65.76
Second Ward ..... 89.46
Third Ward ..... 66.50
Fourth Ward ..... 59.50
Fifth Ward ..... 50.60

Seventh Ward ..... 103.33
Eighth Ward ..... 26.31
Ninth Ward ..... 63.12
Tenth Ward ..... 141.82
Eleventh Ward ..... 54.60
Twelfth Ward ..... 219.52
Thirteenth Ward ..... 17.50

Groceries and Provisions

The amount of groceries and provisions given out from alms house from November 1, 1913, to April 1, 1914 in various wards:

First Ward ..... $36.00
Second Ward ..... 34.00
Third Ward ..... 19.94
Fourth Ward ..... 40.50
Fifth Ward ..... 19.50
Sixth Ward ..... 105.94
Seventh Ward ..... 41.69
Eighth Ward ..... 4.50
Ninth Ward ..... 40.50
Tenth Ward ..... 16.50
Eleventh Ward ..... 5.00
Twelfth Ward ..... 54.00
Thirteenth Ward ..... 9.00

$432.07

For Work Done at Alms House.

The amount of groceries and provisions given out at alms house for work done from November 1, 1913, to April 1, 1914.

Second Ward ..... $11.59
Third Ward ..... 48.19
Fourth Ward ..... .48
Fifth Ward ..... 17.13
Sixth Ward ..... 5.32

Clothing and Shoes.

The amount of clothing, boots and shoes given out from November 1, 1913, to March 1, 1914.

Second Ward ..... $2.00
Third Ward ..... 7.75
Fourth Ward ..... 2.50
Fifth Ward ..... 10.25
Sixth Ward ..... 14.25
Eleventh Ward ..... 7.00
Thirteenth Ward ..... 2.75

$46.50

Those present at the meeting guest of Charles York and family on were Commissioners Waterbury, Stock, Marquardt, Osterhout, Fischer, Davis and Lawatsch and Superintendent Edmonston. The board then adjourned.

LATTINGTOWN.

Lattingtown, April 6.—Farm work in this neighborhood is put back considerably although a few fruit growers, who have uch spraying to do have begun spraying trees and small fruit's already.

Mrs. F. E. Craft, and her son, Leighton, have returned from the state of Alabama, but Mr. Craft hasn't returned up to the present date. He is attending to the building of a seven room bungalow.

H. V. Mackey's extensive improvements on his house are nearly done.

William Robinson intends to work for Thomas O'Brien, who purchased a large grain and fruit farm below Highland.

Benjamin Harcourt has packed and shipped from his cooler two car loads of fine apples to the New York market this spring.

It is rumored that James Dowd has sold his home to Richard his brother and that he will move to his newly purchased farm at Milton.

F. S. Craft has returned to the owners several horses which he has boarded this last winter for $10 per month.

The traveling on the north road to Highland is almost impassable in places until the state road at the school house is reached. Mrs. Martin the teacher has however been able to reach the school house regularly.

Superintendent Staples of Marlborough was around last week making a journey of inspection in this vicinity.

A hearing of the awful dynamite explosion was held recently in Marlborough but nothing new was discovered as to whom the persons were who caused the wrecking of the shop and the breaking of window panes and the frightening of the neighbors of the residence south of Milton on the state road. The Italian who purchased the place has got a permit to carry a gun, and says he is not afraid.

A son was born to William Robinson, who lives in the Mrs. Ruger residence, last week. Dr. Moser attended.

William Atkins is staying at present at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Conn.

The fruit growers are drawing from the railroad station a number of boxes of fruit trees for setting out when the weather and the soil are in proper condition.

The annual Methodist banquet supper held in the Marlborough M. E. Hall was largely attended this year, by not only Methodists but by the members of other denominations. The addresses were witty and interesting. The music was exceptional. Between 13 and 14 hundred dollars were obtained by the sale of tickets.

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, April 6.—We are all sorry to learn that N. Hogeboom has purchased a residence in Kingston and will leave us in the fall, as Mr. Hogeboom is a good neighbor and Mrs. Hogeboom and the Misses Hazel and Jeanie are great church workers.

John Basten and daughter of Stone Ridge visited Henry Keator and family on Sunday.

Miss Edythe Jones, who has been at Vassar Hospital several weeks having a serious operation, returned to her home here on Saturday. We all wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Clarence Cox of Poughkeepsie is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Stanley Steen of High Falls called on friends here on Saturday.

Mrs. John A. Keator is able to be out again after an attack of mumps.

Mrs. William Stalk, after being confined to the house all winter, is improving slowly. We are in hopes when the weather gets settled she will be able to enjoy her usual health.

PUBLIC HEARING ON CHARTER BILL

Mayor Canfield has given notice that a public hearing on the charter amendment bill will be held at the city hall on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The official notice of the meeting will be found in the advertising columns of The Freeman. The most important changes in the charter were printed in The Freeman some time ago, and are as follows:

Fiscal year starts January 1, of each year.

School taxes payable in August, and general taxes in February.

Appointment by mayor of board of public works, consisting of four members, to have jurisdiction over the streets, sewers, parks, etc.

Board of gas and electricity, consisting of three members, to be appointed by mayor, to have jurisdiction over street lighting, etc.

Appointment of secretary to mayor at a salary not to exceed $1,200, whose duties are to assist various city departments as designated by mayor.

The abolishing of the job of deputy city clerk, held by Thomas Kennedy.

Consolidation of city court and recorder's court, and the appointment of a city judge by the mayor and the appointment by city judge of a clerk who shall be a stenographer and of a person to act as city marshal and probation officer.

It provides for the election of an alderman-at-large who is voted for throughout the city and who presides at all meetings of the common council. Salary $300 per year.

Aldermen to be paid $5 for each meeting they attend starting January 1, 1916.

Runaway at New Salem.

Jerry Relyea and Harold Elsworth of Port Ewen, while trying out a new horse which they were thinking of buying, had a bad accident while going down a hill near New Salem. Some part of the harness gave way and the horse got frightened and started to run, throwing Elsworth from the wagon and landing him on a fence. He was unconscious. A doctor was called and moved him to his home on South Broadway. Elsworth had a bad bruise on one arm, but from a rough examination the doctor said there were no bones broken, but thought he was hurt quite badly internally. Relyea escaped uninjured, although quite well shaken up.

No Unionist Candidate.

By Telegram to The Freeman. London, April 7.—Official announcement was made today that the Unionists will not present any candidate to oppose Premier Asquith at the election in Fife tomorrow. Until further notice steamer Odel will leave Rondout Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 11 a. m. Returning leaves New York Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 4 p. m. CENTRAL HUDSON STEAMBOAT COMPANY.—Advertisement.

ALMS BOARD MEETING.

Routine Business Peacefully Transacted by the Commissioners.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of alms commissioners held at the city hall on Monday evening was very calm and peaceful and only routine business was transacted. The board gave no indication as to what steps it intends to take to remove Thomas H. Edmonston, the present superintendent of the alms house. At the March meeting Mr. Edmonston's position was extended two more months by President Waterbury of the board as there was no eligible list from which to select his successor, and his term expires April 30. It is understood that the municipal civil service commission has not forwarded an eligible list to the board although it held an examination to make up such a list on Thursday evening, March 26. At that time seven would-be superintendents took the examination. They were Edwin Burhans, Oscar Addis, Fred Schloff, Harry Dederick, Michael Reis, Ira Contant and Charles Britt.

At the March meeting considerable time was taken up with a discussion of the case of Mollie Goldwasser the 12 year old daughter of Max Goldwasser of South Wilbur avenue. The girl is in a deaf and dumb institution and the institution is endeavoring to make the local alms board pay a bill of $325 for the support of the child during 1913, when its parents moved to Kingston from New York city. The Kings county authorities believe that the Kingston authorities should pay for the support of the child during the time that her parents had lived in Kingston. The matter was left with Superintendent Edmonston to take up with Dr. Hill, superintendent of the state alien poor, and get his opinion on the subject.

At the meeting Monday evening Superintendent Edmonston read a letter received from Dr. Hill in which he stated that the local alms board was not responsible for the support of the child as it was a charge of the Kings county authorities before Mr. Goldwasser moved to Kingston and the child still remained a charge on the Kings county authorities.

By-Laws Amended.

The amendments to the by-laws offered at a previous meeting by Commissioner Marquardt and which were laid over to the April meeting were again read and on motion adopted.

Requisition for supplies at the alms house was read and referred to the purchasing committee with power.

Lighting Expenses Too High.

Commissioner Stock called attention to the fact that the lighting bills at the alms house were rather high and he thought they could be reduced by the installing of tungsten lamps. It was brought out that from six to seven lamps remain lighted all night at the alms house.

On motion the matter was referred to the president of the board with power. Just how many of the new lamps will be installed will be at the discretion of the president.

Commissioner Osterhout reported that the house committee had renewed seven insurance policies that fell due April 10.

Secretary's Report.

The report of Secretary Edmonston for March was as follows:
Balance in city treasury, March 2 ..... $16,727.29
Deposited with city treasurer, March 31..... 3.50
..... $16,730.79
Amount of bills audited this date ..... 2,063.84
Balance on hand ..... $14,666.95
Number of persons in alms house 50 of which 29 were males and 21 females.

Coal Given to Poor.

A report of the amount of coal given out in each ward of the city from November 1, 1913, to March 1, 1914 amounted to $1,166.22 divided among the wards as follows:

First Ward	$65.76
Second Ward	89.46
Third Ward	66.50
Fourth Ward	59.50

Twelfth Ward	219.52
Thirteenth Ward	17.50

Groceries and Provisions

The amount of groceries and provisions given out from alms house from November 1, 1913, to April 1, 1914 in various wards:

First Ward	$36.00
Second Ward	34.00
Third Ward	14.94
Fourth Ward	40.50
Fifth Ward	19.50
Sixth Ward	105.94
Seventh Ward	41.63
Eighth Ward	4.50
Ninth Ward	40.50
Tenth Ward	16.50
Eleventh Ward	5.00
Twelfth Ward	54.00
Thirteenth Ward	9.00

$432.07

For Work Done at Alms House.

The amount of groceries and provisions given out at alms house for work done from November 1, 1913, to April 1, 1914.

Second Ward	$11.59
Third Ward	48.19
Fourth Ward	48.19
Fifth Ward	17.13
Sixth Ward	5.32

$82.71

Clothing and Shoes.

The amount of clothing, boots and shoes given out from November 1, 1913, to March 1, 1914.

Second Ward	$2.00
Third Ward	7.75
Fourth Ward	2.50
Fifth Ward	10.25
Sixth Ward	14.25
Eleventh Ward	7.00
Thirteenth Ward	2.75

$46.50

Those present at the meeting were Commissioners Waterbury, Stock, Marquardt, Osterhout, Fleischer, Davis and Lawatch and Superintendent Edmonston. The board then adjourned.

LATTINGTOWN.

Lattingtown, April 6.—Farm work in this neighborhood is put back considerable although a few fruit growers, who have been spraying to do have begun spraying trees and small fruit's already.

Mrs. F. E. Craft and her son, Leighton, have returned from the state of Alabama, but Mr. Craft hasn't returned up to the present date. He is attending to the building of a seven room bungalow.

H. V. Mackey's extensive improvements on his house are nearly done. William Robinson intends to work for Thomas O'Brien, who purchased a large grain and fruit farm below Highland.

Benjamin Harcourt has packed and shipped from his cooler two car loads of fine apples to the New York market this spring.

It is rumored that James Dowd has sold his home to Richard his brother and that he will move to his newly purchased farm at Milton.

F. S. Craft has returned to the owners several horses which he has boarded this last winter for $10 per month.

The traveling on the north road to Highland is almost impassable in places until the state road at the school house is reached. Mrs. Martin the teacher has however been able to reach the school house regularly.

Superintendent Staples of Marlborough was around last week making a journey of inspection in this vicinity.

A hearing of the awful dynamite explosion was held recently in Marlborough but nothing new was discovered as to whom the persons were who caused the wrecking of the window panes and the frightening of the neighbors of the residence south of Milton on the state road. The Italian who purchased the place has got a permit to carry a gun, and says he is not afraid.

A son was born to William Robinson, who lives in the Mrs. Ruger residence, last week. Dr. Moser attended.

William Atkins is staying at present at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Conn.

The fruit growers are drawing from the railroad station a number of boxes of fruit trees for setting out when the weather and the soil are in proper condition.

The annual Methodist banquet supper held in the Marlborough M. E. Hall was largely attended this year, by not only Methodists but by the members of other denominations. The addresses were witty and interesting. The music was exceptional. Between 13 and 14 hundred dollars were obtained by the sale of tickets.

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, April 6.—We are all sorry to learn that N. Hogeboom has purchased a residence in Kingston and will leave us in the fall, as Mr. Hogeboom is a good neighbor and Mrs. Hogeboom and the Misses Hazel and Jennie are great church workers.

John Basten and daughter of Stone Ridge visited Henry Keator and family on Sunday.

Miss Edythe Jones, who has been at Vassar Hospital several weeks having a serious operation, returned to her home here on Saturday. We all wish her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Clarence Cox of Poughkeepsie is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Stanley Steen of High Falls called on friends here on Saturday.
